BIG ONE GETS AWAY

Doggone! Did you see that one get away! And just when my mouth was getting set for a good meal. These salmon are too slippery to hold. And what a beauty that one was! Well, maybe it's a good thing. If the salmon gets up to the headwaters, there'll be more salmon to fish for later. But I think I'll just wait and see if another one doesn't come close enough to catch. Better luck next time.

What Is 'Punch Drunk?' Ohio Judge Seeks An Explanation
Lovers Often Afflicted
Even Judges Are Victims

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International Copyright and all other rights reserved.)

IT SEEMS that out in Cincinnati Municipal Judge Otto R. Hess is seeking an explanation of the term "punch drunk."

A former pugilist is suing a broadcasting concern for referring to him as "punch drunk." Judge Hess has as his court clerk Edwin Gezhardt, a one-time manager of pugilists, and the judge asked Mr. Gezhardt for his definition of the term.

"When a boxer goes 'punch drunk,' he's known as 'slap happy,'" said Mr. Gezhardt, according to a press association. "You know—'slug nutty' or maybe 'punch goofy.'"

All this, of course, is a trifle vague, and Judge Hess continued the hearing until he gets a clearer definition. We doubt that he will get it from inquiring of the fistic fraternity, which in general has about the same conception of the term of Mr. Geghardt.

The fistic fraternity thinks it is a physical condition peculiar to the fighting game, whereas it is our opinion that often it merely is a state of mind, found in many other trades and professions. We once heard of a college professor who got "punch drunk" taking showers. We must add, however, that we still have this story

'BIG STEEL' GIVES MORE WAGE HIKES

PITTSBURGH, March 6—(AP)—"Big steel" extended its wage expansion program to all of the men in the mills tonight with a ten cents an hour increase for skilled and semi-skilled workmen.

The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, biggest subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, announced the flat increase would apply to the higher working classes—hourly, tonnage and piecework employes.

Last Tuesday it had announced a $5-a-day minimum wage and a 40-hour work week for all, with time and one-half pay for overtime. The men now are working a 48-hour week.

Officials estimate approximately 93 per cent of Carnegie-Illinois' 120,000 workers are in the skilled and semi-skilled bracket. The other seven per cent embraces common labor.

The increases will be effective March 16.

Carnegie-Illinois, producing approximately 30 per cent of the nation's steel, usually sets the pace for the rest of the industry in both prices and wages.

The company also agreed "for the present" not to hire any additional men as a means of avoiding payment on overtime for all who work more than 40 hours a week.

Ten bays of the spillway were to be closed, beginning at 9 a.m., all of the 16-foot stage and scattered along

Mrs. Alice R. Millsaps, 69, mother of F. F. Millsaps, president of the Ouachita National bank, died at a local hospital Saturday night shortly after 9 o'clock following an illness of several weeks. She had been in the hospital only five days.

Mrs. Millsaps was a member of a prominent Monroe family and was born in this city on June 2, 1868. She lived in Monroe all her life. Her husband, Thomas F. Millsaps, who died 48 years ago, was a prominent planter in Ouachita parish and one of the founders of the Ouachita National bank. She was also a sister of the late T. E. Flournoy, who was president of the bank at the time of his death some years ago.

She is survived by her son, F. F. Millsaps, two sisters, Mrs. L. N. Larche and Miss Jordena Flournoy; two grandchildren, Ellen Kent Millsaps and Fred Millsaps, Jr.

FORMER GOVERNOR OF ARKANSAS DIES

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 6—(AP)—John Ellis Martineau, who served Arkansas as governor from January of 1927 to March of 1928 and as United States judge for the eastern district during the last nine years, died today at the age of 63. He had been ill six weeks from influenza, complicated by a heart ailment.

His body will lie in state in the rotunda of the state capitol tomorrow afternoon with a company of state militia providing a guard of honor. Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m., Monday from the First Methodist church here with burial in Rose Lawn Memorial park.

Judge Martineau left the governor's office to accept appointment from President Coolidge to the eastern Arkansas bench in March of 1928. He took a leading role in the flood relief and flood control movements. Another of his notable achievements of 1927 was sponsorship of Arkansas $100,000,000 highway improvement program.

Judge Martineau's last celebrated case was trial of Paul D. Peacher, city marshal of Earle, Ark., who was convicted at Jonesboro last November on charges of subjecting seven negroes to slavery by having them sentenced on false vagrancy charges to work on his land. Judge Martineau in his charge to the jury outspokenly condemned the practice with which Peacher was charged.

Windsor, Vt., Authorities Lay Crime To 'Gang Of Young Hellions'

STRANGE CIRCUMSTANCES LINKED WITH FATALITY

Townspeople Kept In Turmoil As Gruesome Case Unfolded

WINDSOR, Vt., March 6—(AP)—State's Attorney Albion Parker tonight reported a five-year-old boy had informed him that another boy "just a few years older" [illegible] Beverly Ann Page with "a piece of a brick," knocked her out and rolled her into the shallow mill stream where her body was found yesterday.

Parker said the older boy denied the other youngster's charges after being questioned for an hour. The sheriff did not identify either of the boys, nor would he divulge the exact age of the older boy. Both boys, he reported, had been allowed to go home after questioning.

The five-year-old told his story, Parker reported, while sitting on the knee of Sheriff Ernest Schoenfeld in the office of Police Chief [illegible] Edmund.

Parker's announcement came a few hours after Schoenfeld set a conference of investigators to declare:

"We know those responsible and expect to have them in custody shortly."

Earlier another official asserted "a gang of young hellions" were being questioned concerning [illegible] Beverly's death. After an autopsy [illegible]

WASHINGTON, March 6—(AP)—A number of craft union leaders hostile to John L. Lewis agreed tonight that they may use a boycott as a weapon in their conflict with Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

Sight Of Father Partly Lifts Veil Clouding Youth's Mind

JACKSON, Miss., March 6—(AP)—The sight of his father, and stories of his boyhood today partially drew aside the mental veil clouding the mind of young Hugh Avent, Jr., of Greenville, S. C., a victim of amnesia.

The young man showed the first signs of returning memory since he was brought to the attention of county police here a week ago when his father greeted him today at police headquarters.

"Hello, there, my boy," said Hugh Avent, Sr., a retired army officer, as he grasped his son's hand and clasped it warmly.

The boy, told in advance that his father was coming, at first showed no sign of recognition. He stared at his father's eyes as though greeting a friendly stranger.

"Come [illegible] down here by me," the father said, calling the boy by name.

Young Hugh took a seat on a bench beside his father, rubbed his head and gazed intently at this "unknown" man. Suddenly his face lightened and he grasped joyously.

"Hello, Dad, I'm glad to see you."

The meeting was brief. It was feared the youth's mind might be taxed too heavily, but in that short time young Hugh pierced the mental haze that seized him as he walked

KING RANCH ROW ARGUED IN COURT

Suit Filed Four Years Ago Taken Under Advisement By Judge

HOUSTON, Tex., March 6. (AP)—The dispute over the vast cattle domain doughty old Captain Richard King established when the Longhorn steer was king of the range in Texas, was argued in federal court today.

Judge T. M. Kennerly took under advisement the lengthy and involved petition of dissatisfied heirs for an accounting by trustees and for a court-appointed receiver to direct affairs of the millions of dollars worth of property.

The suit was filed four years ago by Edwin K. and Alice Atwood of Chicago, Captain king's grandchildren, who charged that the ranch had been mismanaged.

Thomas Fisher, attorney for the Atwoods, told the court his clients knew nothing of the partition of the estate, that they had not received annuities for two years and that the trustees had sold 6,000 acres of land for $90,000 and applied the proceeds to debts and personal uses.

Attorneys for the trustees and other heirs countered with arguments that Edwin K. and Alice Atwood had been "estranged from Mrs. King" before her death in 1925, that their petition was "not in good faith" and that they "are willing to destroy their own interest to destroy the estate."

Mrs. King and her son-in-law, the late Robert Kleberg, took over the ranch upon Captain King's death in 1885. She managed and improved the vast properties until her death in 1925. In her will she left the residue of the estate in trust to be handled 10 years by the trustees taken named in the will. It was on this trust estate the Atwoods asked an accounting. The property was divided two years ago upon the expiration of the trust period and the trustees—Robert J. Kleberg, Jr., Caesar Kleberg, Congressman Richard Kleberg, Richard King, Jr., Samuel Rachal and John D. Finnegan, continued management of the ranch.

FRACTURE OF LEG SUFFERED BY CHILD

Blue-eyed flaxen-haired little Louise Harris, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Harris, who operate a grocery store and filling station on the Arkansas road, six miles west of West Monroe, narrowly escaped death Saturday afternoon, when she was hit by an automobile while running across the road in front of her home. The accident resulted in a severe fracture of the left leg and the child is in Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic, where attending physicians declared that she is in no danger.

Mrs. L. G. Cook, 2402 Hawes street, was driving the car which struck the child. Immediately following the accident Mrs. Cook rushed the victim to the hospital and then reported the accident to the authorities. She stated that little Louise darted from behind a parked truck into the path of her automobile. She applied the brakes in an effort to keep from hitting the child but the left fender struck Louise and flung her to the side of the road.

No charges were filed against Mrs. Cook, as the accident was said to have been unavoidable.

The union will send delegations from Methodist churches in Mer Rouge, Oak Ridge, Bastrop, Collinston, West Monroe and other cities and towns in this district.

It is expected that there will be a large representation at the March meeting as the program will be made specially attractive.

The towns of Lake Providence, Oak Grove, Mer Rouge, Bastrop, Sterlington, Farmerville, Berryce, Lisbon and Homer will be served by the new line. HOOVER SUPPORTS DRIVE ON CANCER

Director Of G-Men Compares Dread Scourge To Modern Criminal

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, has given his support to the drive against cancer, the "gangster disease," by the women's field army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, according to Dr. Virginia Webb, of Coushatta, commander of the state division of the army, who made public Saturday a statement by the head of the G-men.

"The scourge of cancer," Mr. Hoover said, "may well be likened to the scourge of that modern social cancer—the criminal. Cancer may well be termed a gangster disease, because of its outlaw behavior.

"There is a real, definite, continuing comparison which may be drawn between cancer and the gangster or crime menace. Like cancer, crime in its initiation and seemingly unimportant beginnings appears to hold very little menace to the community at large. However, like cancer, unless it can be rapidly and effectively controlled at the outset it spreads throughout the blood of the community, constituting a truly destructive menace which, if permitted to continue its outlaw growth, will bring ruin and chaos to civilization and all that civilization holds dear.

"Countries have risen to power and have deteriorated into non-existence because of the unwillingness and inability of their citizens to enforce their laws.

"Crime in its violent phases is a disease which must be controlled if the community permitting the menace is to continue to exist. Like the warfare against cancer, the war upon crime requires the cooperative efforts of all of our people, in order to accomplish effective control. Sporadic or individual efforts are of no avail.

"Those who are giving so liberally of their time and money in combatting the spread and endeavoring to extend the control of the modern ravaging menace—cancer, may well be afforded the thanks of a community that can be benefited in no greater manner. It is the duty of each and every one of us to see that the fullest possible support is given to the accomplishment of this great end."

Dr. Webb, in issuing the statement, said: "Mr. Hoover's support is gratifying. If every man and woman and every organization in the state gives us the same kind of backing, in our educational campaign, we shall be able to save thousands of lives. It takes cooperative effort to fight cancer just as it does to fight crime."

FAKE OFFICIALS REPORTED BUSY

Persons Declared To Be Representing Selves As Federal Officers

Rufus W. Fontenot, acting United States collector of internal revenue, announced today that he had received reliable information to the effect that certain persons were going about the state representing themselves to be federal officials and offering their services to taxpayers in connection with the filing of returns under the social security act.

Mr. Fontenot warned the public against these persons and suggested that when taxpayers are confronted by persons claiming to be federal officials they demand that the alleged officials display proper credentials. He said that in one or two cities in the state, alleged representatives were working in groups of four or five men and were charging taxpayers a small fee for computing and filing their social security tax returns for them under the guise that they were official representatives of the United States government.

Mr. Fontenot also suggested that when taxpayers are confronted by persons alleging themselves to be government officials but who are unable to present proper credentials that the taxpayer promptly notify his office or one of his zone offices located at Shreveport, Monroe, Alexandria, Baton Rouge, Lafayette and Lake Charles.

"Of course, there is no objection," Mr. Fontenot said, "to accountants and other qualified persons assisting taxpayers in filing tax returns and charging fees therefor, but, it is illegal for persons to hold themselves out to the public as official representatives of the United States government and this is the practice we are endeavoring to correct."

Manufacturer Explains His 'Career Man' Work Method

GRINNELL, Ia., March 6.—(AP)—Young men who work for G. S. Lannom, Jr., president of the Lannom Manufacturing company, not only work for his money, but they save it for themselves if they want to go on working for G. S. Lannom.

They make out a budget as he directs, so much to live on, so much to save, and they live by it. They even marry by it.

"That," said Lannom today in an explanation of his "career man" method of employment, "is the price they pay for working for me.

"So far they've been willing to pay the price—and when they learn what it will do for them, they're glad to.

"In return I provide them security in their jobs and a way to economic happiness."

Lannom adopted his "career man" system about a dozen years ago. He has 25 men, all in "key jobs" or training for them, working under his budget plan.

Most of them are salesmen of the baseballs, gloves and shoes the Lannom company and its subsidiaries produce. The others are plant executives.

One of the salesmen, Dick Seeland, who started working for Lannom 11 years ago, now draws $1,500 a year, and saves $2,400 of it.

"How does this 'career man' system work?

"Let's take an example. We vary the budget a little depending on the man and the conditions of his work. But it all works out the same.

"I investigate a young man thoroughly. Then I offer him a job, say $75 a month to start. Of that, he must live on $50 and save $25. In six months I raise him to $100. He continues to live on $50 and save $50.

"When he is earning $75 a month, is free of debt and has $2,000 in cash or quick assets he's at liberty to get married. But his wife must join him in his program. They must live on $50, save $25.

"I realize, of course, that an operation or sickness could shoot this budget all to the devil. In such an emergency the company assumes the financial obligations. I don't want my men tied down with worry about what might happen."

Lannom insists three things that can lose a Lannom "career man" his job—dishonesty, disloyalty or disinterest.

"But," he said, "I haven't had to worry about these men on this score and not one has left me because he couldn't live up to his budget program."

WPA REDUCTION TO BE DELAYED

Announcement Made After Six Governors Confer With President

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP)—Governor Benson of Minnesota said after a conference with President Roosevelt today that reductions in works progress rolls planned for March would be deferred one month.

Benson was one of six governors who discussed the relief situation with the president at a three and a half hour conference. The state executives came here to protest against reducing WPA rolls.

Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, and Secretary Morgenthau, who attended the meeting, left without making any statement.

Hopkins has told a house committee that under the program to reduce WPA rolls by 550,000 by June 1, 150,000 would be dropped this month.

Means of financing the whatever additional cost resulting from postponement of this month's cut were understood to have been discussed briefly by the governors with Morgenthau and Hopkins after their talk with Mr. Roosevelt.

The governors from New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, Minnesota and [illegible] protested against the cut on the ground that states and localities were already overburdened with direct relief.

The hospital, uncompleted at the time of the invasion by besieging troops, is seven stories high, constructed of steel and concrete.

Madrid troops now surround the building on three sides, leaving the insurgents only a narrow line of communication with their nearest redoubts in the medical and agricultural school buildings of the university.

Unofficial reports placed at 40 the dead in a semi-circular raid around Madrid by insurgent planes last night, with 120 wounded.

Twenty were reported killed in Aranjuez, some 30 miles south of Madrid, and [illegible] at Tarancon, southeast of the city. The raiders struck also at Villaverde and Parillo, west of Madrid, and Alcala de Henares, to the east.

Military authorities ordered immediate distribution of all available gas masks among the troops in and near Madrid at points where insurgent concentrations were thought to preface a new violent offensive.

The University of Pittsburgh, the "world's tallest school," is housed in a 42-story skyscraper that cost $10,000,000.

Tempos Confused

At Washington is being built one of the largest cathedrals in the world. For many years it has been under construction. For many more years it will be taking shape.

Some day it will stand forth beneath its hill-top heaven complete—a vast and mighty aggregate of stone and brick and steel, fabricated and fashioned one small bit at a time.

A church can afford to be built slowly. The fundamental concepts on which it rests are changeless. The visitor to the Washington cathedral today may sit and contemplate the enormousness of the task this great pile's sponsors have set for themselves.

Yet, a generation from now, men will stand before this church and miss the lesson of patience it patently teaches. For men miss that point today, when it is to be noted easily and directly.

The tempo of all the great mysterious things of life is a tempo of majesty. The great principles and the great truths by which men live were hewn out of mankind's experience—a little at a time, taking shape through the ages, maturing long after their early exponents were dust within their graves.

A society, too, can afford to be reared slowly against the broad panoply of time. If it is built too rapidly it may find itself on the shifting half-truths of social and political adventure. Lasting government cannot be edicted. It, too, must be born of patience and evolution. The hollyhock grafts poorly on the giant sequoia.

On one side of the world is China—victim of reaction. In Europe are nations, victims to revolution and too violent reform. The tempo of old China slowed down to a stop. The tempo of Europe was speeded to impossible pitch—and things cracked. In the middle way is the way this country has chosen to travel.

When factions of discontent see things coming a little their way, they eagerly seek to accomplish a generation's progress in a year or two. It is a sure way to a killing and a disastrous tempo of attempted reform. The tempo for building orange crates is not the tempo for building cathedrals—or civilization.

If laws to do good and to reform are created much faster than good-will in the hearts of men, our present civilization will go the disintegrating paths of many others. Revolution is as bad as reaction.

WORTHWHILE CONTEST

Feminine beauty contests are generally a pain in the neck. The contestants pose and strut and simper and get their heads stuffed full of phoney values, the general atmosphere is a little too much like that of a burlesque show—and the prize-winning "beauty" usually isn't half so pretty as any one of a dozen girls you see on the street at home every day.

But the contest that brought nine good-looking girls together at Chicago the other day was something else again. For it was a contest—not to see which girl was the best-looking, but to see which one could bake the best cherry pie.

Cherry pie is one of the buttresses of American civilization. Even a poor cherry pie is better than none at all; a really good one is a thing beyond price and beyond praise. Contests of this kind, which go to raise the general level of cherry pie-baking, are worth having. And Miss Betty Rine, who won this particular contest, has a distinction that amounts to something!

UNFAIR INDICTMENT

Edmund Burke once reminded the British parliament that you cannot indict an entire nation. Critics of the social order might profitably bear his remark in mind.

Currently we find a widely known New York clergyman declaring that the Hollywood movie-folk are "selfish, sensual, and self-indulgent," addicted to "taking wives in tandem," and given to a form of marriage which is no better than "progressive adultery."

Now there undeniably are movie people of whom this comment is true—just as there are lawyers, steel puddlers, novelists, and itinerant brush salesmen of whom it is equally true. But to denounce the group as a whole in those terms is to commit a manifest absurdity. The high-steppers of Hollywood make the headlines; the people who stay at home and behave themselves don't make the headlines. Why judge the entire colony by the antics of the former alone?

VALUE OF LEARNING

After a day at college, a certain Oklahoman goes home, studies until mid-night, then arises at 5:30 o'clock to get his lessons ready for that day's classes. He is Dr. J. N. Harber, former mayor of Seminole, Okla., prominent physician, and rich oil man.

What lured him back to classrooms 30 years after he left school? Pleasure of learning, Dr. Harber maintained. But an interviewer uncovered the man's basic philosophy; that a person's real success in life depends upon his service to his community and the people about him, and that learning enables him to be of greater service.

People who have contracted the idea that the sole function of an education is to increase one's earning power should find some sort of moral in Dr. Harber's philosophy.

RHYME AND REASON

WHEN YOU ARE TOGETHER!

Should illness come, or any dark dismay
Of changing fortune, when you are together
You can endure life's variable weather . . .
There will be love to brighten every day.

A burden shared is easier to bear,
And joy is keener when you are together.
Trouble will rest as lightly as a feather,
For there is one to sympathize and care.

Hands clasped, upon the hills of time you press.
The future beckons when you are together . . .
There is a promise in this golden tether
Of tranquil years and wedded happiness!

A NEW NEUTRALITY LAW

By BRUCE CATTON

After a great many months of study and discussion, congress is at last about to settle down to a discussion of a new neutrality law. The best forecast now is that it will offer the country a straight cash-and-carry law, under which a war-time customer could get essential supplies only by laying the money on the barrel-head and coming across the ocean with his market basket in his hand.

This would at least be a situation strikingly different from the one we saw in the last war. The foreign customer then was handled with gloves. His credit was good, and the things he bought were delivered at his door, as far as the rather anemic condition of the American merchant marine permitted.

It ought to be possible for us to understand the evils of such a course without leaping to the easy conclusion that low-minded bankers and munitions makers connived in the dead of night to get us into the war.

The principal evil was that such a system made us, to all intents and purposes, part of the allied war machine. That was why Germany was willing to start unrestricted submarine warfare at the risk of an American declaration of war; the Germans simply felt that America in the war would do no more harm than America on the sidelines furnishing the allies with unlimited money and goods.

There is the point of the whole business. Our policy caused the side which could not take advantage of our markets to look on us as an enemy. It made that side ready to adopt a course that would compel us to declare war.

Now we can't expect any neutrality law to make peace absolutely certain. The most that we can ask is that such a law will make it easier for us to stay out of war. We can ask, to be specific, that it will prevent a repetition of the 1917 situation.

Would the proposed cash-and-carry policy do that?

It would obviously help. We would not have American dollars financing a European war. We would not have American ships steaming into submarine zones laden with goods for which American shippers were still responsible. We would not have a hue and cry running across this country every time a tramp freighter full of cotton went to the bottom of the sea.

But there is one factor in the equation that we too often forget. The British navy.

As long as that navy remains dominant, only one side will come to our shores to trade in any European war which involves England. If we sell any goods at all, we shall be selling them to England and her allies and to no one else. To the extent of these sales, we shall have 1917 all over again.

That is not to say that the law would not help. It would. But whether it would help enough to keep us out of war is still an open question.

A BOOK REVIEW

'I FOUND NO PEACE'

A Newspaper Reporter's Philosophy Hits A Stone Wall

A newspaper reporter is presumably a prosaic being. His job is to ascertain facts and set them down accurately for the information of the public. Whether he clothes his stories in simple phraseology or embellishes them with the elaborate trimmings that connote human interest, he is not supposed to go beyond the realm of factual reporting.

Yet for all that he may be a philosopher. He may interpret facts in the light of human need and experience. Often the facts he discovers may illuminate and emphasize his philosophy. Again they may simply destroy it as an illusion.

Webb Miller, famed correspondent of the United Press, who spent twenty years reporting wars, insurrections and revolutions, was a searcher after peace. He was a disciple of Thoreau, whose philosophy of tranquility is so eloquently expressed in "Walden." Miller carried a little volume of "Walden" wherever he went—on the bandit-infested plains of Mexico, over the war-torn fields of Europe, into revolutionary-racked Russia and the bit of hell which is known as Ethiopia—everywhere that his duties as a war correspondent carried him. But he found no peace, and so, when he wrote the story of his experiences, that is what he called his book, "I Found No Peace."

His conclusion is that war and revolution, intrigue and bloodshed, are not the way to human tranquility. And yet he sees no hope that these tragic experiences will cease to be the lot of human kind as long as national and international selfishness continue to sway the affairs of mankind. That is nothing new, perhaps, but Miller does give a new aspect of the philosophy as he describes with the practiced hand of the reporter just what he found in his futile search for peace among the war-torn peoples of the world.

Miller's book is one that ought to be read by every father and mother and particularly by every boy who is inclined to revel in the imaginary "glories of war."

The author tells what he sees. He does it in undertoned English, for the most part, which makes his stories all the more eloquent and impressive.

Here is a little picture of his reactions following his first appearance on the front lines in France.

"During the battle of the Ourcq, in which the Americans participated heavily, I was suddenly summoned to the front. It should have given me a supreme thrill. But actually it was dust and ashes. I felt like a gnat on a huge whirling flywheel. The war took place on such a stupendous scale that when you were close up to it your mind refused to grasp it. I felt bewildered and obsessed with a sense of futility. I saw only one tiny cog of a vast machine, it seemed almost impossible to integrate it with the thundering roar of the machine which sucked in hundreds of thousands of men, ground tens of thousands into bloody fragments, and spewed back tens of thousands broken and bleeding."

In this picture he discovered how rapidly "human beings become accustomed to their environment, accept it as though it had existed always, and how casual, impersonal and machinelike the whole proceeding becomes."

And so it went, throughout twenty years, "following the wars—in Ireland, in India, Austria, Germany, Russia and Ethiopia. That was the job of the man who was 'looking for peace.'"

He found it not. But he did find ample material to tell a thrilling tale of the things that go on behind the scenes, as well as those which occur on the stage where "the bells of hell go ting-a-ling-a-ling."

"I Found No Peace" is a magnificent bit of newspaper reporting and as such it belongs to literature.—F. W. W.

SILENCE IN THE COURTROOM

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Oyez! Oyez! Oyez! (To use the language of the supreme court's official announcer as he ushers the nine justices to their seats.)

Three dates demand the attention of those who want to follow each new move in the battle of the century over Mr. Roosevelt's plan to pack, repack or unpack (the choice of words is yours) the supreme court:

1—March 9. This is the date set by President Roosevelt for the next of his "fireside talks" to the nation. While his subject has not been officially announced, the talk is pretty certain to be an appeal for his court reorganization plan, designed to loose a deluge of pressure on congressmen from constituents "back home." There has scarcely been a comparable political move since Woodrow Wilson "took the League of Nations to the people." The events of this date may well affect those of the two dates immediately following.

2—March 10. This is the day the senate judiciary committee begins its hearings on the administration bill. The lineup of witnesses isn't available yet, but it is practically certain Attorney General Homer S. Cummings will appear in support of the measure. Partisans in each camp are wondering how Cummings will try to defend his previous premises that the rich are favored over the poor, because of court congestion; that the congestion is due to the advanced ages of justices; that the supreme court's refusal to review most cases appealed to it represents a miscarriage of justice. The judiciary committee includes some bitter enemies of the Roosevelt scheme.

3—April 11. On this day, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes becomes 75 years old. Hughes has written that "the risk of having judges who are unable properly to do their work, and yet insist on remaining on the bench, is too great to permit chances to be taken." He added that "a compulsory retirement at 75 could be more easily defended" than a retirement age of 70. Hughes might decide he should live up to this theory, or he might decide he has no right to quit at this time while the court is under fire. Public attention probably will be called to those old statements of Hughes.

Country Has Choice

In case you don't care to listen—or in case you want to get your answers ready, the high spots of Roosevelt's March 9 address can be synopsized right now.

The president will declare the New Deal program calls for maximum hour and minimum wage legislation, collective bargaining, social security, unemployment relief, crop control and crop insurance, a federal housing program, flood prevention with co-ordinated river basin control similar to TVA, and a broad program for conservation of natural resources.

The country can take its choice, Roosevelt may be expected to say, between having these things this year or taking a chance on getting them some time in the next 10 years. The president will declare that these measures cannot be had without a change in the supreme court. He will say that he has asked the members of congress to think up some other method of attaining them constitutionally in the near future and that members of congress have been unable to produce.

The Real Pressure

That talk, as the land lays now, will be the trump card in the administration offensive. But the probable deciding factor in congress will be a matter concerning which the president will give no inkling in his speech. This matter is a question of the "price" the president will have to pay in order to get a sufficient number of the large group of senators who are now "reserving judgment" to support his plan. The country will not be advised as to how many senators are promised federal judgeships, the extent to which Roosevelt will agree to compromise on his civil service reform proposals in return for help from patronage-hungry legislators, or the bills which the president will agree to support in return for votes to allow him to enlarge the court.

Even a few of those who have declared against the plan, according to some of Roosevelt's more cynical friends, have left room for themselves to return to the fold in case the "price" is made sufficiently attractive.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

There are few more stimulating studies in mass happiness than the crowds streaming out of the theaters in light-hearted currents after the evening curtain. They sweep along with a bubbly joy to the cafes, the night clubs or private home suppers. It is life on the up beat.

A nightly display of the carnival spirit, and if there is sorrow in the world no one seems conscious of it. This crowd spends a quarter million in the [illegible] nightly on cabarets, Welsh rarebits and sundry fancy drinks.

New York—at least that section that lives on Broadway—does not like to go home. To go just one more place always finds instant response. It is seldom a theater party makes just one visit.

The formula is something like this: First a gay, [illegible]-eyed sort of place like Leon and Eddie's or Jack White's [illegible]. Then to some satiny and swanky dance club for a few whirls and then to Reuben's, the Kit Kat or other places that swing into high along about [illegible]-up.

Oddly enough, the New Yorkers have mastered more than any other people I've ever seen the art of going from a night club to a shower and on to the office, all fresh and rosy without a wink of sleep. Hundreds do it nightly and apparently attend to their duties at the office or shop. Young girls often appear at lunch all merry and bright without having slept the night before.

These, naturally, are not, as might be imagined, the visitors in town for a fling. The great majority are the lifetime residents who have been following this routine for years and would not feel they were in the swim without so [illegible]. The out-of-town visitors, so the hotel men say, are generally in bed at midnight. They have their fun a bit earlier and are willing to call it a day.

Heights of something or other in book titles: "The Man Who Did Not Exist."

From a famous artist: "Most successful fellows spend half their time making good and the other half talking about it. I'm sick of egomaniacs. As soon as I see a man who is very successful I want to see his unsuccessful brother. And did you ever notice that the fellows who last in the success business never say anything about it?"

Home town puff: Gallipolis, O., is the highest river town between Pittsburgh and New Orleans.

Man's inhumanity to man may make countless thousands mourn from the philosopher's view, but the idea doesn't stack up very well after the recent response to the Red Cross appeal for flood sufferers. I know many notable instances of tremendous sacrifice to meet the needs, among those who have as well as the have-nots. I know one garage worker who cut down his family's grocery bill to make his contribution, and there were many clerks who went without their lunches, gladly and willingly. It was all a magnificent display of live and let live.

Nothing, to my notion, is more amusing than jitter talk. Someone tells me of a confused host the other day twittering: "I'm glad you for coming."

One of the most depressing jobs it strikes me is that of the crooner attached to a cafe orchestra. He must sit quietly until at stated intervals he bobs to the microphone and sings the same monotonous ditties night after night, generally to almost no applause. I understand they are paid from $35 to $75 a week. They must have good looks and better than the usual voices.

When Lindbergh and his wife arrived in Rome by plane recently he said: "We shall remain several days if not bothered." There's an annoying dot of ego about that. Nobody in any part of the world is going purposely to annoy the Lindberghs, unless waiting and standing to one side with a touch of reverence for heroism to watch them pass, is obnoxious. That should annoy no one in the public eye, and we do not believe it actually does.

A Modesto (Calif.) cynic's impression of Fred Astaire: "Flying coattails, ungainly legs and noise."

Light has always played an important role in emotions since the Biblical injunction: "Let there be light." I know a gentleman subjected to fits of depression in the long hours of the night who can banish his blues by turning on all the lights in the house. In a little while the mental fog lifts.

Billy Bryant and his show boat did valiant rescue work in the Ohio valley flood. Moored for the winter at Pt. Pleasant, Bryant's boat rescued many and housed many others until the waters receded. "Children of Ol' Man River" indeed.

STAMP NEWS

By I. S. Klein

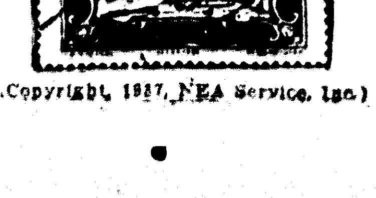

FRANCE and Turkey are at loggerheads over permanent control of the Syrian district of Alexandretta, whose chief port of that name once was the starting point of extensive caravans to Persia and India. From the time of Alexander the Great's victory over the Persians in the fourth century, B. C., to the building of the Suez Canal in 1869, Alexandretta thrived as port of transfer from ship to camel, and even now it is an important seaport and rail terminus.

But, built on a marshy plain, the city of 12,000 inhabitants is a drab, unhealthy place.

It has become the center, however, of a rich region where cotton, tobacco, licorice, and citrus fruits are grown, and where oil has been discovered.

Placed under French mandate after the World War, this district now is being sought again by Turkey. Two stamps issued by Syria, in 1925 and 1930, illustrate the port.

YOUR HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Erysipelas begins as an irregularly round or oval patch on almost any part of the skin. One kind is called the butterfly type, because it appears on each side of the face, the patch on each cheek being connected by a red streak over the bridge of the nose.

Erysipelas patches are dark red in color, slightly swollen, hot, and tender. Once the condition begins, it may spread rather rapidly on the skin, covering another inch or two every day, until considerable sections of the skin are involved.

At the same time there may be fever and chills and all the symptoms usually associated with a general infection of the body—headache, loss of appetite, vomiting and sometimes delirium.

Ordinarily, erysipelas will clear up in about eight days, but in severe cases may take 15.

Erysipelas of the face may spread over the entire face, including the eyelids, and may even swell the eyes shut. When erysipelas affects the ear, this organ will become exceedingly thick.

It is an interesting fact that erysipelas frequently stops when it reaches the hairline or, in fact, any natural boundary such as the nape of the neck or the edges where the skin is tight over the bones.

An infection of this kind usually is accompanied by much fever, and also an emphatic increase in the number of white blood cells, which are concerned with the attack on the infection.

When the skin infection stops, the fever begins to drop. If the skin has been swollen enough to be damaged by the inflammation, it may peel after the disease passes. In some cases, however, erysipelas may repeatedly attack the same areas of skin and may cause a permanent thickening which, like any type of scarring, is unsightly.

The most serious complication of erysipelas, of course, is a secondary infection with other germs, particularly of the type associated with abscesses. If abscesses develop, it may become necessary to apply new methods of treatment to control the formation of pus and to get rid of the infectious material.

In erysipelas cases, a secondary infection with pneumonia, a severe abscess, or a secondary infection of heart or joints may be much more serious than the original disease itself.

Erysipelas seldom proves fatal. Nevertheless, in very young babies and in very old and in sickly people, it may be sufficiently serious to cause death. In general, however, the death rate for erysipelas is low—about three deaths a year for every 100,000 people in a community.

When erysipelas appears repeatedly in the same individual, the new attacks frequently may be controlled by treatment of the condition from which the erysipelas arises. Chronic sinus infection, ringworm of the feet, and constant irritation of the skin by rough clothing or similar material may be the beginning of inflammation in such repeated cases.

A great many experiments have been carried out to define the exact form of the streptococcus responsible for erysipelas, and there seems to be a well-established belief that a special form of streptococcus, differing from that which usually causes scarlet fever, is responsible for this condition.

Italy has 14,313 miles of railways.

Once railways had no signals. When engineers met on a single track, they had to argue it out. Later a post was erected midway between stations and the first engine to pass it went forward, the other backed up.

BRUISED BODY

day, Schoenfeld declared the little girl's brutal death was a case of "murder by drowning."

Parker asserted tonight the five-year-old boy told him that while Beverly lay in the water, he "held her down by the hair for a short time" while the other boy stepped on her stomach.

Parker quoted the five-year-old boy as saying:

"Me and Beverly Ann were playing near the river when the other boy came along. He pushed her down and pulled off her overshoes.

"She cried some. He hit her with a piece of brick. He knocked her out. He rolled her in the river. Then—threw one of her overshoes out into deep water about 50 feet away and I threw the other one in beside her. Then—stepped on her stomach while she lay in the water and I held her down by the hair a short time.

"The—boy ran away and I picked up an iron hoop and tried to pull her out by putting that around her neck. I couldn't move her because she was too heavy."

When Beverly Ann was found by searchers yesterday five hours after she disappeared from the home of her aunt, her jaw bone was punctured and an iron hoop was around her chest.

Referring to the story of the five-year-old child, Parker declared:

"I can't believe a child of that age could imagine such a story. On the other hand, I do not like to see any person incriminated on a five-year-old child's story. We are continuing the investigation."

The death of the four-year-old girl, whose jaw bone was punctured and who had an iron hoop around her chest when found, upset this entire town of 4,000. Almost isolated, Windsor nestles near the New Hampshire line at the foot of Mt. Ascutney, tallest peak of the Green mountains in Vermont.

Repeatedly during the day, investigators asserted that they sought more information about the activities of a group of youngsters, described by Police Chief John Edmonds as "hellions." He declared he had evidence that some of them, little older than young Beverly Ann herself, had practiced cruelties on other children in the neighborhood.

Only an autopsy in mid-afternoon had upset a theory previously expressed by States Attorney Albion Parker that the girl's body bore evidence of an attempted "criminal assault."

In reporting upon the autopsy, held in a little white frame house which is given over in part to an undertaking establishment, Parker said the verdict had been "death by drowning."

Even as he said this, however, he added that there were many mysterious circumstances connected with the girl's death and that the inquiry would be "pressed" to the limit. Only a few minutes later Sheriff Schoenfeld added that it was clearly a case of "murder by drowning."

The townspeople were kept in a ferment as the case unfolded, marked by conflicting reports.

The girl's body was found late yesterday in a shallow, rocky gully, through which a tiny stream entered a mill pond about a quarter of a mile away from the home of her aunt, Mrs. Louis Thibault. The water, less than a foot deep, failed even to cover her body.

Two white overshoes, of which Beverly Ann was known to be proud, were found in different spots, some distance from her body. Her clothing was disarranged, and there were strange bruises in addition to the unusual wound on her jaw.

Parker told newspapermen last night that a preliminary investigation had disclosed no water in the girl's lungs, and to this her aunt, Mrs. Thibault added a cry:

"The child never went down there herself. Somebody took her. She never left the yard without telling me."

The autopsy, as reported by Parker, however, resulted in the drowning verdict. But the full report of his investigation was withheld by State Pathologist Charles F. Whitney, and under the law will not become public for at least seven days.

Through all this, the dead girl's mother was confined to the Claremont, N. H., general hospital, about 10 miles away. A baby girl was born to her there last Monday, and news of the death of her other daughter was kept from her. Young Beverly Ann had been visiting her aunt during this period.

along a street here last Saturday and suddenly realized he did not know his name or anything of his past.

"Do you remember the trip we made out in Texas last summer?" the father asked his son as both strained for a restoration of the boy's memory.

Hugh thought for a moment.

"I remember that mother and I planned to go with you, but we didn't."

Later Mr. Avent told officers his son was thinking of the summer before, and was partially correct.

"Anyway, it is a hopeful sign," he beamed.

The youth may be taken in custody by United States army officers and sent to an army hospital for treatment.

He had enlisted in the army to receive preparatory training for an expected appointment to West Point, his father said. A physical disability blighted his chances for the appointment, and he deserted last December. Since then he had roamed about the country.

"The lad fell off a bicycle when he was 11 years old," Mr. Avent said today, "and he has not been entirely the same since. But he had shown no mental instability."

"The fog was so thick you can cut her with knife," yelled a fisherman from a nearby trawler.

Workmen on the Golden Gate bridge about a mile away could not see the drama, first aware of which came only from the Coolidge's [illegible].

Sun shone over the blue ocean and the rest of the bay, but the ghostly patch of fog covered the "Gate" as the giant span nearing completion.

The big passenger ship flashed a distress call saying she rammed the tanker at 12:45 p.m., just twenty minutes after leaving her pier for the outgoing voyage.

At 1:05 p.m., she radioed that all hands from the tanker had been saved. Four minutes later Captain K. A. Ahlin, the Coolidge's skipper, reported he had taken aboard the entire tanker crew.

The tanker was reported by the coast guard late today as in a sinking condition.

The President Coolidge appeared badly damaged in the bow, the coast guard reported.

"The tanker is standing on its end with its stern high out of water," said the report.

BRITISH STAGE

vinced it was pure accident," said Wiles.

Scotland Yard began its investigation when the ship reached Plymouth and Miss Oxford made a statement to the detectives. The French line was believed pursuing a separate inquiry.

Miss Oxford, who was returning from New York, where she had appeared with a group of chorus girls, related her story of the party when the boat train from Plymouth reached here.

"Everybody was celebrating the final night [illegible]," she said. "About 2 or [illegible] I threw a small party for some of my friends in my cabin. Vosper was one of the party.

"Several people were there all the time. We were drinking champagne and everybody was happy. I talked for some time with Mr. Vosper on the veranda outside my cabin. Then I returned to the cabin and joined the others.

"After a time, I missed Vosper. He was not on the veranda. We could not find him in his cabin. Then I told the steward that Mr. Vosper was apparently missing. It is impossible to say what happened."

Vosper's [illegible] met the train, searched frantically through the coaches in an effort to find him, then burst into tears.

"It's awful!" she said. "I had a feeling he wouldn't be on the train."

Vosper was returning from Hollywood, where he was said to have done film work. Generally regarded as one of England's [illegible] young [illegible], the [illegible] "Henry VIII" [illegible] "The Rose Without a Thorn." He produced his own play, "Spellbound," in New York in 1927.

BIG RECEPTION

RUNYON

under investigation, and the reader must not accept it as true until we report further.

IT IS certain that the term "punch drunk" derives from the prize ring.

It is a popular impression that when a fighter undergoes a long succession of blows around the head the effect is to addle his brains, muddle his speech and disarrange his gait. Thus he is said to be "punch drunk."

However, it has been our observation that other things besides actual blows around the head will produce almost identically the same condition in persons of fighters.

For instance, it is a well known scientific fact that there is a definite vibration to the act of setting a glass or bottle down on a wooden counter such as a bar, that reacts on the human nerves.

So if a man, or woman, makes a practice of picking up and setting down glasses, or bottles on a bar over a considerable period of time, the vibration eventually produces something very closely akin to the state of being "punch drunk."

Some scientists hold [illegible] that may be in the glass [illegible] but they sometimes has something to do with the final effect. We [illegible] a little too deep for us. We know of one man who was held to be "punch drunk" as a result of being thrown out of bars. But this was before the scientists had found out about the vibration.

ANOTHER thing that undoubtedly produces numerous cases of "punch drunk" in this country, is unrequited love. It is not known, to be medically, at least, as "punch drunk," though the effect is there. Addled brains, muddled speech, [illegible] all there.

It is known as "carrying the torch." The term, we believe, was first used by Tommy Lyman, a pallid [illegible] who is known in New York and Paris and elsewhere as the tubercular tenor. Mr. Lyman describes [illegible] as a burning [illegible].

[illegible] for Mr. Lyman [illegible] called it "the torch." He wrote sad songs about it. Perhaps out of his own experience. Tenors are more familiar with these things than we bassos.

GENTLEMEN afflicted by unrequitted love, or "carrying the torch," have been known to walk through brick walls and never notice the debris falling about their ears. They are without doubt "punch drunk."

They talk to themselves. They forget appointments. They give their friends short answers. They run after taxicabs thinking they may contain the object of their unrequited affections. They neglect their business. They lose weight. They are unsociable, and a terrible pest. Let us forget them as quickly as possible.

LADIES "carrying the torch" are worse than the men. They sit around places where they may see the objects of their unrequited affections, and look mournfully. They are no company for a gentleman who is trying to fill the place of the gentleman for whom they are "carrying the torch." What is more, they always tell this gentleman when they finally wake up, what the other gentleman said to them. It develops bad friends.

CRAFT MEN TALK

where they are employed, should belong to the union of their craft.

Because Lewis organized the Committee for Industrial Organization to accomplish his ends, the federation suspended his United Mine Workers and nine associated unions last September.

Another reprisal some A. F. of L. men are considering would call for craft union members to refuse to recognize the label of Lewis unions on consumer goods.

This would be tantamount to a boycott.

The federation's Tampa, Fla., convention last November took a step in this direction by voting not to recognize the label of the Amalgamated Clothing workers, one of Lewis' principal allies.

Still another proposal would call for formation of rival unions in Lewis territory. William Green, A. F. of L. president, repeatedly has said that the Lewis unions would have to be expelled before the federation could take that step.

However, the A. F. of L. already has chartered an international union to organize an industry claimed by the United Textile Workers, and Green intimated this week he might consider sanctioning establishment of a rival union in steel.

The fourth section of the craft unions' battle program calls for a craft organization campaign in territory claimed by both the crafts and Lewis. The craft unions would insist that no agreement between Lewis unions and industry freeze the old line unions out of the picture.

CREDIT COMPANY BRANCH OPENED

Commercial Bankers Organization Establishes Branch In Monroe

The Commercial Credit company, Inc., announces the establishment of a branch office in Monroe located at 423 Bernhardt building, and engaging in the business of installment banking. The office will finance all makes of automobiles, new and used, electric refrigerators, household appliances, radios, heating and air-conditioning, automotive and shop equipment.

The opening of this office here will enable many dealers in the above articles who heretofore sold their products for cash, to negotiate sales whereby customers may be carried on long term payments by the Commercial Credit company, Inc. This company will purchase paper, make collections and pass credits locally. The company functions as an aid to the individual to purchase from favorite dealers, and the payments can be handled on Commercial Credit's convenient payment plan, through their local office in Monroe.

J. P. Taylor, regional manager, with headquarters in Memphis, Tenn., stated that his organization selected Monroe for the establishment of a branch office because this city was a "live business center" and his company recognized the bright future of Monroe.

The Commercial Credit company, Inc., which celebrates its silver jubilee this year, was organized in 1912 with a capital of $300,000, one office and four employes. On December 31, 1936, this company and its subsidiaries were operating through 3,629 employes in 230 local offices in the United States and Canada, including 51 separate local offices of the American Credit Indemnity company of New York, reporting a gross volume of business purchased of $789,000,000.00 for the year 1936.

At the present time the Commercial Credit company, Inc., has a capital and surplus of over $60,000,000. In the Southern Region, which includes the Memphis, Jackson, New Orleans, Shreveport, Little Rock, Fort Smith, Nashville and Monroe branches, the company employs in excess of $10,000,000 in cash.

W. H. Baker, formerly assistant to the office manager at Jackson, Miss., will be office manager of the Monroe branch, and E. R. Schwaner formerly with the company in New Orleans, will be district representative. Both of these men have been connected with the industry for a number of years and are well known throughout the Monroe territory. They will appreciate an opportunity to serve you, it was announced.

Vernon C. Grosse, Pastor

Sunday school and Bible class at 9:45 a.m. Church service at 10:45 a.m. The Epistle lesson for the fourth Sunday in Lent is found in Galations 4:21-31. Paul's Epistle to the Galations is the Magna Charta of Christian liberty. Our lesson contains one of the arguments of the apostle by his endeavors to bring the Galation Christians back to the true conception of the Gospel, and leads to the appeal to stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ has made us free. We extend a hearty welcome to everyone to worship with us.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
George H. Dierlamm, Minister

Sunday, being the fifth Sunday in Lent, is called "Passion Sunday." The minister's thought for Sunday will be Jesus' onward movement in His appointed course. He approaches a crisis. His popularity begins to wane. The opposition, gathering force, plots His death. The shadow of the cross looms ahead. Consider the fickle crowd. Early in the Galilean ministry throngs never left Him. He had no time to eat. At the lakeside He was forced to preach from a boat. Even when the Master sought the lonely places, the rough intrusion of the people shattered His solitude. Gradually the multitudes turned away. The disciples began to mutter among themselves. Why this desertion? Consider the organized opposition, the scribes and Pharisees, custodians of a dead religion. Listen how Jesus exposes these traditional doctrines and customs. Jesus continues to force His way on thru the army of opposition. What have we given for our Christianity? What contribution are we willing to make toward it? Will the church be stronger in its spiritual force if you neglect to support the ideals for which Jesus died and lived? Will we join with Jesus as a loyal soldier who will bear up under sacrifices and suffering? Will you be one to help to build the kingdom of God on earth? Services at Pleasant Hill at 11 a.m., and 7:15 p.m. At Equality church at 2:30 p.m.

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "So God created man in His own image, in the image of God created He him; male and female created He them." (Gen. 1)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man, made in His likeness, possesses and reflects God's dominion over all the earth. Man and woman as co-existent and eternal with God forever reflect, in glorified quality, the infinite Father-Mother God." (p. 516).

GRACE CHURCH
Fourth and Glenmar Streets
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

Sunday, March 7, is according to the church year, the 4th, (Mid-Lent) Sunday in Lent. We now turn to the second part of its design, and consider "Christ our Passover," as we have heretofore learned by the temptation and fasting of Christ, that Satan is our taskmaster, and the world our Egypt. Today, we are also presented with Christ as our prophet, next Sunday with Christ our priest, and then on Palm Sunday with Christ our king. Further, this Sunday is sometimes called the Sunday of Reflection, because, having thus far considered the havoc of sin, we now come to consider its repair; and because the sufficiency of Christ to refresh and satisfy our hunger after righteousness is exhibited in the Gospel for this day. This Sunday has little of the austere character of the other Sundays in Lent; and its design is to encourage the catechumens and the Penitents. The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 7:30 a.m. for communion; and at 11 a.m., for worship. The rector will preach at the 11 a.m. Eucharist. The Church School will assemble at 9:30 a.m., and evensong and sermon at 7:30 p.m. The rector will preach on the "Offices of Instructions" at this service. The rector will journey to Saint David's, Rayville, and hold service at 4:30 p.m. The church is open daily fram 7:30 a.m., until 5:30 p.m. "Come in, rest, pray, give thanks, meditate."

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
L. T. Hastings, Pastor
D. C. Black, Director of Education And Music

The pastor will occupy the pulpit both hours Sunday. At the 11 o'clock hour he will bring the last of a series of morning messages on "The Preeminence of Christ," the subject being "Christ As King." At the evening hour he will speak on "The Second Coming of Christ," and this will conclude a series of evening messages on great Bible doctrines. This being the first Sunday in the month we will bring our offerings for the building fund. The day has also been designated throughout the south as the day for making a free-will offering for the benefit of the Baptist churches that suffered damage or complete loss of their buildings in the recent flood in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys. The goal set is $500,000, which is a mere pittance of the total loss sustained by hundreds of churches. Let the strong come to the help of the weak, and the fortunate aid the unfortunate. Mr. Black, who was called to Oxford, Miss., on account of the death of his father, has returned and will have charge of the music. Sunday school and B. T. U. as usual. A cordial welcome is extended to strangers and visitors.

THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Grammont at Catalpa
Ernest Holloway, Pastor

This is the last month of the church year. With your hearty cooperation and loyalty this may prove to be the high mark in our congregational history. Why not worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness at least once each Sabbath day? Why not honor Him with that portion of your means to which you think in the light of Holy Writ He is entitled to have? Why not enlist in the Sabbath school and become a student of the Holy Scriptures? God is counting on His people to carry on His work and among the most effective ways is church fidelity. "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life." "Doubt Mastered by Love" and "A Heroic Soul" are the subjects of our meditations this Lord's day. Among the men of the New Testament two of the most interesting are Thomas, the doubter, and Zacchaeus, the crook. The one was assailed by skepticism; the other was conscious of his dishonesty. They were lifted by the Christ. Under Him they developed a soul life which is possible for every one. "You are you. Your personal profits can come, for a time, on the basis of business deception. Your individual prominence can come from a party preference. You may get before the people through the medium of an active press agent; but all these things or schemes are as fleeting as the shadows when the sun goes under a cloud. Your ambitions, your desires, and your thoughts comprise your own world, and in this intimate world you must live. The world will be better just as soon as you improve yourself." (Van Amburgh, the Silent Partner).

Crayton S. Brooks, Pastor

Our Church school opens at 9:45 a.m. We call upon each teacher to be present on time with a prepared lesson. The morning worship begins at 10:45. The sermon subject will be "The Jewish Passover and the Lord's Supper." The pastor is asking each member to pray at exactly noon each day for church attendance. Pentecost found the early Christians "all with one accord in one place." Here is the secret of power. Two young folks groups will meet at 6:30. At 7:30 the customary sermon will be set aside in favor of a concert of surpassing interest to be given by Professor Theophilus Fitz, director of music in the Central Christian church of Shreveport; Mrs. Nan Hagood, president of the Central Christian choir and soprano soloist; and Mrs. Sarah Liddle, soprano soloist, Mrs. Cecil Palmer, contralto, Mrs. Kathleen Pankey, soprano soloist, and Miss Hardis Saunders, accompanist, all of the Central Christian church. There will be 14 in the party. This concert is free to all of Monroe's lovers of music. Come and enjoy this real festival of song. The board of officers will meet Monday evening at 7:30. The Bible Study club meets at 7:30 Wednesday evening.

BICYCLE STOLEN HERE FOUND IN ALEXANDRIA

A bicycle, reported stolen Wednesday from the Ouachita Parish High school grounds here, has been recovered at Alexandria, and a youth, charged with the theft, is being held there, according to information received here by Police Captain Frank S. Pettit, acting superintendent of police. The bicycle belonged to Edward Aulds, 315 North Fourth street, West Monroe. Stiffness, Soreness Now Gone Entirely Stomach Regulated Too, Dizziness Ended; Mrs. Cox Enjoying Best Health She Has Had In Five Years Since She Began The New Gly-Cas.

"For five years before I knew of Gly-Cas, constipation and stomach trouble had allowed my system to become clogged with poisons," said Mrs. A. J. Cox, 806 Georgia street, Amarillo, Tex. "Gas, bloating and indigestion were sure to follow every meal I ate and I always had a heavy rock-like feeling in the pit of my stomach. There were many medicines I could not eat at all for the suffering they would cause me afterwards and I was always forced to take the strongest of laxatives and then they were none too good. Finally rheumatism settled over my body and then I was in constant suffering. My knees and feet swelled and became so stiff and sore I could hardly get around at times. I tried first one thing then another and yet I could find nothing to help me. It was terribly discouraging and I did not know where to turn next when I began to hear praise for this new Gly-Cas on every side—I decided it must be one medicine that is truly different—so I put it to a REAL TEST on my own case and found it wonderful."

"Little did I realize any medicine could be as wonderful as this new Gly-Cas was for me," she continued. "I can now eat foods I dared not touch before, my stomach no longer causes me any trouble regardless of my diet. Dizzy spells have been eliminated, bowels regulated and those awful poisons have been removed in a most natural way. That dreadful rheumatism has been conquered, swelling has left my knees and feet and the stiffness and soreness has gone. I had suffered so long and tried so many different medicines with complete failure I had about decided there was no medicine able to help me but to my pleasant surprise Gly-Cas went to the source of my health troubles, toned my entire system and I am now enjoying the blessing of good health again."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug company, 348 DeSiard street, and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns. —Adv.

WHY FORD USES ONLY

V-type

8 CYLINDER ENGINES

FORD CARS have always been built around a basic idea. The Ford became famous because it filled a fundamental need—"Dependable, economical transportation."

As roads and cars improved, Ford kept ahead. In 1932, a new fundamental step was taken—the introduction of the V-type 8-cylinder engine in a low-price car.

The V-8 engine was not new. It had been used for years. But always in large, expensive cars. Ford found the way to produce this really superb power plant in a really low-price car.

Today, more than three million owners are enjoying brilliant Ford V-8 performance on the road. Their cars are set apart from other cars by a fundamental principle—the V-type 8-cylinder power plant—not merely the temporary styles and fancies of the day.

Eight cylinders give smoothness, performance and flexibility that a lesser number of cylinders, naturally, cannot give. And V-type is the most advanced power-plant construction—on land, water, or in the air.

Still pioneering, Ford provides for 1937 a choice of two V-type 8-cylinder engine sizes. 85 horsepower for top-notch performance. 60 horsepower for rock-bottom economy.

Each is built into the same big, roomy car, with the same modern features. Each will prove to you, in its own way, how much the modern V-8 engine helps to make the Ford V-8 THE QUALITY CAR IN THE LOW-PRICE FIELD.

AIR-CONDITIONING NEEDED IN HOMES

Standard Office Supply Co., Specializes In Modern Delco-Frigidaire Systems

Delco-Frigidaire air-conditioning is now available at a surprisingly low cost, according to F. C. Benham, Jr., sales engineer for the Standard Office Supply Co., Inc., Delco-Frigidaire air conditioning dealer for Monroe and surrounding territory. Whether for home, office, or store, the Standard Office Supply company is equipped to meet the needs of any size of installation. They maintain a complete engineering and installation department to design and install air conditioning for one room requiring a single unit, or for the larger type requiring 50 horsepower or more.

"The term 'air conditioning' may be described simply by the following definition: the treatment of air to render it healthful and comfortable for humans," Mr. Benham explained. "Treatment of air may involve cooling, heating, ventilation, circulation, cleaning, addition or removal of moisture, or combinations of the above functions. Naturally the ideal system is one which provides all the functions of air-conditioning and this is known as a year round installation. The latest development in air conditioning is a gas-fired winter conditioning system with provisions built into it for the future addition of summer conditioning. This type is considered by most of the new home builders.

"The following suggestions might prove helpful to the person contemplating building a new home," Mr. Benham continued. "First, the new home of today without air-conditioning or provisions for it will become obsolete in a few years. Second, air-conditioning installed when the house is under construction costs less than when it is added to a house already built. Moreover, a more efficient and better appearing installation can be made while the house is being built. Third, the architect should be consulted regarding the design of the house so that ducts, grilles, and other necessary equipment may be installed with minimum cost. Fourth, a reliable local air-conditioning dealer of considerable air-conditioning experience should be consulted and a complete set of plans for the home be given his engineer in order that he might design the system properly. All air conditioning dealers gladly submit proposals on any size system with no obligation to the prospective buyer. Fifth, the air conditioning contract should be let separate from the general contract, but cooperation between the two contractors is essential.

"A proved and established fact is that the air-conditioned home is a more healthful home," he said. "Proper temperature, humidity, fresh air, and circulation are most effective in combating such ailments as the common cold, hay fever, asthma, and general loss of energy. Filtering of air alone removes all dust particles, pollen, and dirt from the air which carry germs to the nose and throat. The average person consumes three to five pounds of food per day and about 35 pounds of air. Such things as 'pasteurized,' 'double-sealed,' 'wrapped in celophane,' and 'proper refrigeration' are demanded in the foods bought, but little thought is given to cleanliness of the biggest diet—air."

The installations made by the Standard Office Supply company include the following: Hemp's cafeteria, Ruth Shops, Fields, Inc., Brown Paper mill offices, Virginia Hotel coffee shop and bar, Hotel Frances coffee shop and bar, Woman's Shop, Ouachita Coca-Cola Bottling company offices, Pilcher's Barber shop, Peacock's jewelry and M. C. McDonald's residence. Installation being made now are Abe Blumenthal's residence, and KMLB studio.

Delco-Frigidaire air-conditioning, a product of General Motors, enjoys an enviable reputation of sound products and pleased customers. Answer to any inquiry will be gladly given by the Standard Office Supply Co., 125 St. John street. A 'phone call to 519 will bring their representative to you to consider your needs.

OLDSMOBILES START ROLLING AGAIN

Here they come! Flanked by cheering employes, the first Oldsmobile built since manufacturing activities were resumed, leaves the final assembly lines at Lansing. Nine hundred fifty-seven Oldsmobiles were produced the first day. Production schedules call for 1,080 cars each working day. Approximately 12,000 employes are now working on day and night shifts in the Oldsmobile and Lansing Fisher Body factories.

NEW MATTRESS AT HOME FURNITURE

'Perfect Sleeper' Proves Outstanding Value At Present Low Cost

Something entirely new in mattresses, designed to provide greater comfort during the hot weather by assuring greater coolness, has been introduced to the Monroe buying public by the Home Furniture company, 501-11 DeSiard street, which announces that it is now selling the famous "Perfect Sleeper" tuftless, inner-spring mattress, a nationally advertised product, with many new features.

The new mattress, which is beautifully finished with imported ticking, is provided with hundreds of small eyelets replacing the old unsightly vent holes, and has been designed especially for hot weather.

"Perfect Sleeper" mattresses can be kept clean at all times because they are tuftless, thus preventing dirt particles to lodge in the ticking. The inner-spring feature assures the maximum of sleeping comfort and no longer allows the forming of uncomfortable bumps and ridges which heretofore was a disadvantage of the old style mattress.

Box springs to go with the "Perfect Sleeper" mattress are also on sale at the Home Furniture company, and the combination of both will assure owners of these mattresses a greater degree of coolness during the coming summer months.

"Perfect Sleeper" mattresses and box springs can be purchased at the Home Furniture company on convenient terms to suit all customers.

Silver coinage is coming into greater use in Germany, France, Rumania, Peru and Mexico.

WALLPAPER STYLE SHOW CONTINUES

Sherwin-Williams Company To Continue Display At Store Until March 15

J. F. Davis, manager of the Sherwin-Williams company, 109 Catalpa street, declared that the 1937 wallpaper style show now in progress will continue until March 15 and the public is invited to visit the store and see the latest patterns on display there.

"Modern homemakers know that it is smart to choose colors and designs as carefully as they select their new spring wardrobes, for their homes express their personality just as surely as their clothes," Mr. Davis pointed out. "With a proper wallpaper as a background, the whole decorative scheme can be tied together and home furnishings are set off to best advantage."

The largest variety of patterns, colors and types of wallpaper featured this style show which has attracted many visitors during the past two weeks. These patterns include drop tones or pastel shades, formal or informal types, large or small designs, authentic Colonial, Victorian or Empire patterns, for every room in every home, be it large or small.

Many of the designs being shown at the Sherwin-Williams wallpaper style show have been especially created by world-renowned artists. Each paper has been conceived with a specific type of room and atmosphere in mind. Special efforts have been made to arrange room ensembles, not only interesting combinations of side wall and ceiling papers, but even the papers which can be most effectively used in adjoining rooms.

"The most surprising thing about these wallpapers is their practicability," Mr. Davis explained. "They will not fade and are truly washable. Another remarkable new creation is the new wood-reproduction paper. If a person desires a knotty pine library this can be achieved with never a nail pounded in or a carpenter's shaving to clean up. The reproduction is so exact that guests will have to feel the walls before they will actually believe that it is just one of the many clever 1937 effects to be had in wallpaper."

CENTER BOXERS MEET BAUXITE TEAM MONDAY

GEORGE V. LOFTON, SPORTS EDITOR

MONROE, LOUISIANA, SUNDAY, MARCH 7, 1937

SPORTS CHATTER

By George V. Lofton

THE CRITZ TROPHY

Players in the Cotton States league this year will have an added incentive to "put out."

Hughey Critz, former New York Giants infielder, has offered the "Hugh Critz trophy" to the player voted the most valuable in the Cotton States circuit this season. Sports writers in the eight league towns will select the player to receive this trophy.

Critz, who retired from baseball a couple of years ago, resides in Greenwood, a member of the Cotton States league. Hughey is now president of a Greenwood motor company but he still retains his interest in baseball.

Critz will give a medal or plaque which any ball player should be proud to own. Heretofore, no "most valuable" award has been made in the Cotton States league.

SHORT TAKES

Sports editors of morning papers will breathe a sigh of relief when the boxing and basketball tournaments are over. The lads fight or play all night and it's a merry scramble to get the results in the morning paper, if at all.

Brown Paper mill's defeat in the Southwestern A. A. U. semi-finals was quite an upset. However, we still think the Brownies have a fine ball club.

Mickey Cochrane refuses to pick his choice in the American league flag race but he says the teams to bear watching are the Tigers, Yankees, Indians and White Sox. Mike must have strained his needle to think up that one.

The high school rule that prohibits a boy from attending a baseball school not tutored by his own coach kept many youngsters from picking up some valuable diamond pointers here. When sillier rules are made the amateurs will make them.

Bill Bendel has been accepted into the Southern Football Officials association. Bill was welcomed into the association in a friendly letter from A. R. Hutchins, secretary of the group. Nice recognition for a good sportsman.

Promoters have a technique all their own in advertising wrestling in Miami. One typical ad which appeared in the newspapers stated that for the price of admission a spectator might see: "A Bloody Jungle Riot. All Villain Card. Assault and Battery. Blood-Action. Mayhem." Quite a sixty-worth, isn't it?

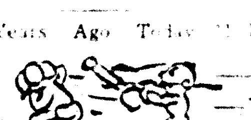

There won't be all of the above at Neville High school auditorium Monday night but if you want to see some real action, go out and watch Northeast Center and Bauxite run off their boxing meet. It'll be well worth whatever it costs to get in the place.

S. E. CONFERENCE APPROVES 2 BIG 'BOWL' CONTESTS

However, Athletic Officials Ban Other Post-Season Grid Spectacles

By Kenneth Gregory

ATLANTA, March 6—(AP)—Participation of Southeastern conference teams in the Rose and Sugar Bowl games was sanctioned today by the executive committee which outlawed all other "so-called 'bowl' contests" sponsored by a third party.

No action was taken relative to the conference joining with the New Orleans Mid Winter Sports association in sponsoring the Sugar Bowl game similar to the arrangement prevailing with regard to the Rose Bowl contest in the Pacific conference.

Lengthy discussion followed a report by Athletic Director H. J. Stegeman of the University of Georgia, chairman of the football committee that conferred recently with Sugar Bowl officials on the question of the conference lining up with the association.

[illegible]

The question of radio broadcasting football games has been held up. A committee appointed to negotiate for the sale of broadcasting rights [illegible] asked permission to [illegible] several proposals until April 15 and this was granted.

Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt opposed the move. The action means no school can enter into negotiations on its own until after April 15. The members will not be bound by any recommendation the committee may make in the meantime to the executive committee.

It was reported an offer of $[illegible] had been made the conference by a sponsor for the exclusive rights to broadcast Southeastern games, with the choice remaining with the sponsor. The conference hopes for a better figure, one that will be agreeable to all institutions.

The conference increased the number of games permitted freshman football teams from two to three and clarified the rule on the taking of motion pictures to read as follows:

"No member of the conference shall make, purchase, or otherwise secure motion pictures of football teams of other members except in games where their own team is one of the teams."

The maximum fee for officiating at a varsity football game was increased from $50 to $62.50 and expenses to conform to the scale adopted by the Southern conference. A committee was appointed to investigate the possibility of the central booking office handling the listings and wage scales of officials in other sports.

A section of a by-law defining a freshman student was amended to read: "A freshman is a student who enters a member institution from a high school, preparatory school, or junior college high school." The debate centered around junior college high school students who play on the college team and then enter a member institution as a freshman.

Cross-country was added to the list of conference meets and tournaments. Several dates for future conference events were approved.

On motion of Wilbur Hutsell, of Auburn, chairman of the track committee, the conference set May 14 and 15 for the annual track and field meet at Birmingham, Ala.

T. P. (Red) Heard, Louisiana State athletic director, invited the members to stage the first annual golf tournament at Baton Rouge, La., April 8, 9 and 10. Athletic Director Stegeman announced the third annual Southern Intercollegiate Invitation Golf tournament would be held at Athens, Ga., April 22 and 23.

The first annual swimming tournament will be sponsored by Mississippi State at Starkville, Miss., April 10, Athletic Director Paul B. Parker announced. He said eight members had agreed to send teams for the meet to be staged under N. C. A. A. rules.

Faculty Chairman F. H. Fox of Tulane university said the conference was invited to send representatives to the invitation tennis tournament at New Orleans May 7, 8 and 9.

Dr. R. L. Menuet of Tulane university, president of the conference, presided.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 6—(AP)—The first casualty turned up in the New York Yankees' spring training camp today. Don Heffner, reserve infielder, reported an infected toe from wearing a tight shoe in practice.

COLUMBIANA WINS HIALEAH CLASSIC

Hirsch Thoroughbred Beats Out Finance In $50,000 Widener Cup Race

MIAMI, March 6—(AP)—Columbiana, owned by W. J. (Buddy) Hirsch, today won the $50,000 Widener Challenge Cup before a crowd of 20,000 at Hialeah park. Mrs. Emil Denemark's Finance, the favorite, was second and J. W. Parrish's Dellor third in the field of 16.

Coming from off the pace in the stretch, Columbiana finished the one and a quarter miles two lengths in front of Finance for his fourth straight victory. Finance, coupled with Mrs. Denemark's Two Bob and E. D. Shaffer's Floradora in the betting, had another length and a half advantage over Dellor, the only three-year-old in the race. Mrs. John Hertz's Count Arthur was fourth.

Columbiana, which worked the Widener distance in 2:02 in preparation for the rich stake, was clocked in 2:01 4-5 to equal the track record.

Despite her consistent record, the four-year-old daughter of Peter Wrack paid the long odds of $14.20 for a $2 win mutuel ticket, $5.40 to place and $4.30 to show.

WINS COURT TITLE

PHILADELPHIA, March 6—(AP)—Ogden Phipps of Roslyn, Long Island, won the national singles court tennis championship today for the fourth straight year, defeating James H. Van Alen of New York, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4, with a display of terrific hitting power.

OUACHITA GIRLS AGAIN WIN STATE CAGE TITLE

LOCAL SEXTETTE RETAINS TITLE IN BASKETBALL MEET

Lionesses Trim Simpson Six, 35-20; Pleasant Hill Wins Boys' Crown

BATON ROUGE, La., March 6.—(AP)—Pleasant Hill of Sabine parish won the state high school championship tonight in the boys' division and Ouachita Parish High school of Monroe annexed the title in the girls' competition.

Pleasant Hill defeated Coushatta easily in the finals, fulfilling general prediction, and running its season record to seven tournaments and 45 consecutive games without defeat.

The titlist team won largely by brilliant performance by Ashley Bozeman, six foot three-inch forward who scored 16 points, and Rudolph Pattison, guard.

Coushatta however, had the consolation of landing its star player, A. R. Jowers, center, as winner of the "most valuable player" of the tournament.

The selection of Jowers was made by tournament officials after the tournament closed.

St. Aloysius of New Orleans won third place in the boys' play when Lafayette forfeited the consolation. Both St. Aloysius and Lafayette were eliminated in the semi-finals.

Ouachita won the girls' title by defeating Simpson 35 to 20 with Wall, lanky forward, scoring 25 points by herself to ice the triumph for the Monroe sextette.

Ouachita advanced to the title round in the girls play by trouncing Lyon of Covington, 46 to 23, and Simpson progressed to the last flight by beating Sugartown, 29 to 13.

Coushatta entered the semi-finals by whipping Sugartown, 29 to 25; St. Aloysius by trimming Castor, 32 to 24; Pleasant Hill by defeating Jesuits of New Orleans 28 to 21, and Lafayette by winning from Trout-Goodpine, 31 to 25.

WASHINGTON & LEE WINS CAGE CROWN

RALEIGH, N. C., March 6.—(AP)—Paced by six foot seven inch Bob Spessard, Washington and Lee tonight defeated the University of North Carolina, 44 to 33, to win the Southern conference basketball championship.

The rangy Spessard dropped in ten field goals and five free tosses while the Generals' defense effectively kept the White Phantoms from consistently getting close range shots.

The Virginians, seeded first and finalists the last three years, built a 23 to 16 lead at half time. North Carolina, a team of long range shooters in first and second round victories over Duke and Wake Forest, failed to make their shots go home tonight.

The gaunt Spessard, the all-tournament center, lurked beneath his basket until his mates sent up the ball, then the big fellow took the backboard rebounds and twisted them back across the rims. Red Borries, another tall fellow, was on hand when Spessard's short tosses missed.

HINES RETURNS HERE TO SEEK BOXING MATCHES

Buddy Hines, Monroe boxer, who won the lightweight championships of Georgia and Alabama several years ago, is back in town looking for matches. Hines now is a welterweight.

His most recent victim was Jack Wright, whom he beat at Many, La., after knocking him down 13 times in a 10-round bout. He kayoed Odell Sanchey, of Alexandria, in the third round of their scheduled 15-rounder, and previous to that, beat Billie Davis, of Hot Springs, in a 10-round match.

Hines says he is in good shape and hopes to shine before Monroe fans in the near future.

OUACHITA GRID SQUAD TO OPEN DRILLS MONDAY

Fifty Candidates For Lions' 1937 Football Team Expected To Report

The Lions of Ouachita Parish High school will begin spring football training here tomorrow afternoon at 3:45 o'clock on the school grounds with approximately 50 candidates for the 1937 Lion eleven expected to be on hand for the initial drills, it was announced yesterday by Coach Vernon "Lefty" Haynes.

Coach Haynes loses practically all his 1936 lineup through graduation this spring, but expects to work out another stellar combination from the material on hand.

Missing from the lineup next fall will be first string linemen Sherman Gideon and Rudy Vandenberg centers; Moise Peters and Wheeler Mitchell, guards; Abner McClary, tackle; J. C. Black, Wright Sherrod and James Bates, ends; and backs, Solly Mayer and Clyde Roye.

Seven lettermen will form the nucleus of the new eleven. They are Cason Mitchell, Paul Patterson, Alvin Fleming and W. B. Stewart, backs; Buford Goss and Floyd Vann, tackles; and Fain Richards, guard. Running mates for these will probably come from a half dozen boys who appeared in the lineup occasionally last fall. They are Benny Averette, end; James Peters, guard; "Red" Brothers, center; and George Byron Vaughan and John Wilhite, backs.

A big number of good prospects is expected to come up from Coach George "Riser's freshman-sophomore squad to bolster the strength of the returning players.

The workouts this week will be light with the team candidates working out in shorts and football shoes. Mostly all this week's drills will consist of plenty of running and handling the ball, but no rough stuff. But by the beginning of the second week the actual fundamentals of football will begin to figure, with the regular togs taking place of the light equipment and the real work beginning.

The drills, with Coach Haynes being assisted in the work by Coaches Roy Ary and Woodrow Turner, will last about two hours a day for the next six weeks with a regulation game between two evenly matched teams of the squad bringing the work to a close.

The schedule of games for the coming season has not yet been completed, but several schools have already been contracted by Coach Haynes and the card will be even tougher this season than it has been in past years, according to the outlook. A newcomer to the Lion schedule for 1937 will be the powerful Panthers of Camden, Ark., who along with Byrd of Shreveport, Haynesville's Tornado, the Bolton Bears and the Tallulah Trojans, should give Ouachita plenty of trouble. Others on the schedule will be Bastrop, Mangham and Delhi, with Coach Haynes still seeking one more opponent for his boys.

WISNER AND CROWVILLE WIN FRANKLIN CROWNS

GILBERT, La., March 6.—(Special)—The finals in the Franklin parish junior and senior girls' basketball tournament were played here tonight, with the Crowville junior girls winning the title in that division, and Wisner copping the senior girls' championship.

Wisner beat Gilbert, 26 to 25, in one of the most thrilling basketball engagements seen in this parish in several years. First one team and then the other took the lead and it was anybody's game until the whistle ended the battle. Wisner reached the finals by defeating Winnsboro, while Gilbert trimmed Central to advance to the championship game.

In the junior girls' final, Crowville walloped Fort Necessity, 27 to 11. Crowville got to the final round by beating Winnsboro and Fort Necessity won its way to the last game by trimming Ogden.

The timber of Alaska is confined principally to the Tongass and Chugach forest reservation. The Tongass, located in the southeastern part, contains about 30,000 square miles.

CISTOLDI AND MATHENEY MEET AT STADIUM

TWO ROUGHHOUSE ARTISTS TO MEET IN FEATURE BOUT

Bacagalupi And Rothberg, A Newcomer, Wrestle In Semi-Final Match

Angelo Cistoldi and Hank Matheney, two of the roughest grapplers of the current crop who are appearing regularly at Roosevelt stadium, will fight it out next Tuesday night in the main event of the weekly wrestling match at the local arena, Promoter Phil Lisotta announced last night. In the semi-final, Louis Bacagalupi, another tough entry, will tangle with Abe Rothberg, rugged New York Hebrew, who tips the beam at 225 pounds.

Cistoldi has been running roughshod over all opposition at the stadium for the past month and Promoter Lisotta believes he may find his match in Matheney, who is capable of dishing out just as much dirt as Cistoldi. Matheney returned to the stadium last week after an absence of more than a year and was disqualified for his rough tactics in his match with Doug Wycoff. He demonstrated that he has not lost any of his rough stuff by dealing plenty of misery to Wycoff and only through the good work of Referee "Butch" Martin did Doug escape more serious punishment.

Matheney, who is a native of south Africa, is a veteran at the game and knows all the rough tactics that the more villainous of the grapplers employ. He should be an excellent opponent for Cistoldi and there's bound to be plenty of fireworks when they meet.

Cistoldi has been getting away with anything short of murder since he made his local debut a month ago and apparently he has borne a charmed life. Despite the fact that he's given his opponents every reason to hit him with everything but the ring posts, his foes so far have been most charitable. However, Matheney isn't expected to take it as his other opponents have, and Mr. Cistoldi, who hails from the snobbish Hyde Park district of Boston, is likely to have his hands full.

The semi-final also may find the principals bent upon modified murder. Bacagalupi, of course, is known here as a roughhouse artist pure and simple. Rothberg, on the other hand, can go either way. He's a scientific wrestler who knows all the holds, but he also can match blow for blow when it comes to swinging his fists, and he may decide that the only way he can beat the Italian is to slug it out with him. Rothberg has an excellent record. He will be making his southwest debut Monday night when he wrestles at Shreveport.

Promoter Lisotta hasn't announced who will referee the matches. J. B. Swanson will make the announcements and Mike Tarver will keep time.

Both matches will be best two out of three falls, with the main event limited to two hours and the semi-final having a one-hour time limit.

Tulane Retains Southeastern Boxing Championship

INDIANS PREPARED

Gormley, who won a technical knockout victory over Jimmy Peterson, 118, of Bauxite, in the opening fight of last month's card, will get a tougher opponent for tomorrow, according to the lineup announced by Coach McDermott. Everette Schultz, scheduled to meet Gormley, is expected to give the Indian plenty trouble.

The only duplicate match of the recent Center-Bauxite card will be the Lavelle "Shorty" Green-Charles Ragan fight. Ragan stopped Green with a second round technical knockout at Bauxite, but Green has improved materially in the past three weeks and has been polishing off practically all his opponents since then without going the limit. If Green keeps up his recent good work he will give Ragan a rough night.

Snyder Parham, who came to Northeast Center's boxing team from Bauxite, where he gained fame as a member of the strong Bauxite A. C., doesn't know who he will meet yet. Evidently Parham is held in great respect by the Bauxite scrappers and Coach McDermott is undecided which scrapper to send against him, but indicated that the Bauxite representative would be either Jo Jo Brown or Raymond Medlock. Parham won a decisive victory over Herman Hogue of Bauxite recently.

Hogue, however, will be fighting in a heavier class, being billed to meet Monroe McNaughton, 145, of Center. McNaughton also scored one of Center's three points at Bauxite when he decisioned Carl Henthorne, but Henthorne is being left at home tomorrow, it was said.

In the 165-pound bout, James Gremillion, of Center, and Lawrence Caughman, Bauxite, are slated to meet. Neither of them appeared on the card last month, but Gremillion has been fighting for the Indians for a couple of seasons and last week went three rounds with Don Wiley, Louisiana Tech's knockout artist, although he lost the decision. Caughman is not to be under-rated, considering the high calibre of the mittmen usually turned out by Coach McDermott.

James Williams, Center's 165 pound battler, is slated to meet Gould Nix. Nix, at Bauxite, won a decision over Tony Veranda, 175, of Center, in one of the best fights on that card, and he is expected to make the going just as tough for Williams.

However, the feature bout of the card is expected to be the Veranda-Montgomery scrap. Veranda, the Center light-heavy, who is capable of turning in any kind of performance from a classic exchange of punches to a wild melee of slugging, can be depended on to fight from start to finish, while Louis Montgomery is one of Coach McDermott's stellar entries.

GREENIE MITTMEN WIN TWO TITLES IN FINAL BOUTS

Florida Second And Louisiana State Third In Annual Boxing Tourney

NEW ORLEANS, March 6.—(AP)—The boxing laurels of the Southeastern conference will rest on the brow of the Tulane mittmen for another year.

Tonight before 4,700 cheering fans that packed the Tulane gymnasium, the Greenie mittmen ran up a total of 16 points. Monk Simons' boys won two conference championships and placed two other men in different bouts of the evening.

A fighting trio from Florida was close behind the winners with an aggregate of 13 points while Louisiana State university was third with 11 points.

From the opening bout that brought two furious flyweights together until the heavyweight classic the fans were treated to eight bouts of spirited boxing. Only one contest failed to meet the approval of the fans and that was when the decision in the light heavyweight bout was awarded to Cameron Gamble of Tulane over Eisenberg of Georgia.

The evening was opened when L. S. Rentz of Florida won the bantamweight championship.

Rentz carried the fight to Joe Gersack of Louisiana State and, hitting like a welterweight, forced the other boy time and again to seek cover. A wicked cut was opened over Rentz' eye in the second round but he kept coming in fighting to take the decision.

Art Fowler of Alabama, ostensibly a featherweight but with dynamite in both hands, took the championship in this division after delivering a terrific lacing to Louis Phillips of Tulane. The curly-headed Alabaman, whose strong suit was left and rights that started from the general direction of the floor, came out of his corner with a rush in the opening stanza and for three furious rounds hit Phillips with everything but the ring posts.

The lightweight event proved a tame affair after the furious slugging of the two preceding bouts but Joe Brocato of Tulane managed to eke out a decision over Richard Day of Alabama, his opponent. Both boys showed little in the first two rounds and Brocato's punching in the last frame was considered the deciding factor. The bout was marred by a low blow that Day protested momentarily to the referee but the boys went on fighting.

A good left hand won the welterweight championship for Jackson Long of Florida. He brought the second championship of the night to the Alligator state when he took the measure of Alton Taylor of Mississippi State. Long's ability to paw with his left hand and cover up in the clinches brought him a clean cut victory over Taylor.

The fanciest footwork of the evening coupled with the ability to feint, work in and throw punches with both hands won the senior welterweight title for Steve Wilkerson of Ole Miss. Wilkerson showed the classiest exhibition of boxing of the evening in decisively outpointing Chester Carville of L. S. U. Carville stayed in there gamely, but was not match for the bobbing, weaving, and punching Rebel.

J. L. Golsen of Louisiana State took the first championship for the Baton Rouge school when he outpointed Steve O'Connell of Florida in the middleweight event. While O'Connell appeared the faster boy in feinting and weaving Golsen's haymaker rights and lefts piled up so many points that the contest was never in doubt.

The conference ruling against cheering or booing was violated at the end of the light heavyweight bout when prolonged Bronx cheers greeted the officials decision that Cameron Gamble of Tulane had defeated Burton Eisenberg of Georgia. Eisenberg had stayed on top of Gamble through the fight and it appeared to most [illegible] in front. Gamble greeted the [illegible] boos by thumbing his [illegible] the [illegible]ective audience.

The last bout of the evening and the only one not to go the limit resulted in a technical [illegible] "Moon" Mullins of Mississippi [illegible] Warren Jaubert of Tulane. After feeling each other out [illegible] Mullins began [illegible] fight to Jaubert and after [illegible] with both rights and lefts [illegible] the Tulane boy started [illegible] round out in front. With [illegible] and 56 seconds of the [illegible] still to go, Referee Wolf of [illegible] lifted Mullins' hand as Jaubert [illegible] gly pawed at his opponent.

THE SUMMARY

NEW ORLEANS, March 6.—(AP)—The summary of the championship round of the Southeastern conference boxing tournament here tonight follows:

Bantamweight — L. S. Rentz, Florida, outpointed Joe Gersack of L. S. U.

Featherweight—Art Fowler, Alabama, outpointed Louis Phillips of Tulane.

Alton Parker won the first game of the deciding set. Bowden went into a 40-0 lead in the second. His net game had been to his advantage, but Parker passed him and threw him off stride. The game went to deuce and Bowden lost out on a netted ball and double fault. Parker had no trouble from that point on.

Miss Hirsh, who had gained the final by staying on the baseline and outwitting the top-ranked Norma Taubele, played the same type of game against Mme. Henrotin. The French women played poorly at the net, but her soft placements were too much for her younger opponent.

Although she held a 5-3 lead in the first set, Miss Hirsh was unable to hold her advantage.

PATRIOTIC ESSAY PLAN ANNOUNCED

Bar Association To Conduct Contest In Teachers' Colleges

Marion K. Smith, of Shreveport, chairman of the committee on American citizenship of the Louisiana State Bar association, announces the first annual patriotic essay contest held under the auspices of the American Bar association to be conducted in the teacher colleges and normal schools throughout the United States.

Any regularly registered undergraduate student attending any teachers' college or normal school in the United States is eligible to the competition. The subject of the essay is: "How and to What Extent Are the Rights and Liberties of the Individual Protected Under the Constitution of the United States?"

Any eligible student who wishes to submit an essay should write to "Executive Secretary, American Bar association, 1140 North Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.," to obtain a number, with instructions as to its use in submitting the essay. No essay will be considered for a prize unless it has been received by the executive secretary on or before April 1.

The names of the colleges for Louisiana coming within the scope of this contest have been obtained from the state department of education, and their heads are being communicated with regard to this contest.

The American Bar association is offering $1,000 in cash prizes to the writers of the four best essays received throughout the United States, viz.: first prize, $400; second prize, $300; third prize, $200; fourth prize, $100. In addition to these prizes, the Louisiana State Bar association is offering $50 in cash prizes for the three best essays from Louisiana, viz.: first prize, $25; second prize, $15; third prize, $10. Therefore, the student in Louisiana participating will have the major prizes of the American Bar association and also those of the Louisiana State Bar association to vie for.

Robert E. Brumby, president of the Louisiana State Bar association, has appointed a committee of three to act as judges of the contest for Louisiana. These three judges were selected from the association's committee on American citizenship. W. W. Young, secretary of the association, is acting secretary to the association's committee on American citizenship.

The committee on American citizenship expects this contest to be of much interest to those eligible and that there will be many participants.

NEGRO YOUTH HELD ON SLAYING CHARGE

One negro boy was dead last night and another negro youth was being held by Monroe police as his slayer as the result of a fight said to have occurred last Sunday morning on Jackson street.

Augustus Jones, 15, 702 Wilson street, died of a fractured skull at St. Francis sanitarium about 10 o'clock Friday night, and a half an hour later A. C. Clay, 15, living in the 2900 block of Jackson street, was arrested by Police Officers C. W. Dent and H. L. Tolbert and booked at police headquarters for "investigation," pending a hearing to be conducted by Dr. Irving J. Wolff, coroner.

Clay told Officers Dent and Tolbert and Sergeant C. H. Sisson that the fight came as a result of Jones accusing him of cutting tires on the slain negro's bicycle. Clay said he denied cutting the tires, and that Jones picked up a piece of iron, saying "I'm going to knock your brains out." Clay then picked up a piece of brick, he said, and hit Jones on the head.

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, March 6.--(AP)--Cotton ended a week of lagging prices today with a burst of buying that added a dollar a bale to options and lifted the market to new highs for the season.

Even the customary week-end liquidation and profit taking sales that developed were unable to stand the tide of advancing cotton values.

The market closed at the top prices of the day and spirited bidding prevailed for all positions.

March cotton was inactive, but May finished 19 points higher at 13.53, July was up 22 points at 13.34 and October gained 24 points to sell at 12.99.

Spot houses, ring professionals and commission houses were actively buying cotton, while some realizing sales by long speculative interests furnished most of the selling.

The bullish tone of today's brief session was a fitting climax to the most sustained advance cotton prices have experienced in three years.

Exports for the day were 31,331 bales.

Cotton futures closed firm at net advance of 19 to 24 points.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, March 6.--(AP)--Buying forces in today's stock market hitched their trailers to steels and rails and rode into new high recovery territory with gains up to 2 or more points.

While leaders extended their advance in heavy dealings, week-end profit selling kept any other in restricted grooves and cut down an assortment for moderate losses.

Blocks of 1,000 to 25,000 shares changed hands at the opening and the ticket tape was behind during most of the proceedings. Transfers were around 1,800,000 shares.

The French monetary situation as well as continuance of labor controversies received much attention in boardrooms but without any especially disturbing effect on speculative and investment sentiment.

Aiding steels was the forecast mill operations in the Youngstown district next week would reach 89 per cent of capacity, a new post-depression peak. Expanding shipments of heavy industry products put the carriers again in the limelight.

Selective upturns appeared in the bond division, although U. S. governments once more dipped. Cotton futures exhibited renewed strength and grains improved.

The French franc had another relapse, but sterling about held its own.

Outstanding in the forward share movement were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, American Rolling Mill, Sloss-Sheffield, Southern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson, Southern Railway, Union Pacific, American Telephone, Radio, U. S. Smelting, Howe Sound, Homestake Mining, Texas Corporation, American Can, Allied Chemical, Great Northern Ore, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich and Macy.

Chrysler fell back and hesitancy was shown by General Motors, International Harvester, Boeing, United Aircraft, Westinghouse, Du Pont and Loew's. Utilities were at a standstill.

Oil issues generally were listless on the belief this industry may be next on the list of the unions for an organization drive.

CHAPTER XXXII

The address on Bond street, when Peter arrived there, proved to be an unimpressive brick apartment building. There was something depressing about the exterior and something infinitely more depressing about the interior. But to Peter it appeared as a green oasis in a barren desert. He would find Ann here! He was sure the telephone message had come from her.

He ran up the uncarpeted steps, hearing voices above. The door to one room was open. It must be filled with a great many people, for some of them had spilled out into the hall. Peter recognized them as reporters.

He scowled blackly. If they were giving Ann trouble...

And then he stood for a moment, weak from disappointment, leaning against the door.

An angry young man, with pillows at his back, was sitting up in bed talking very crossly to his visitors, who grinned cheerfully back at him and went on taking notes.

The angry young man was Lawrence, the former chauffeur, but he wore no uniform. Then Peter saw Carol.

"Oh Peter, darling! I'd about given you up—what a time you took to come! Peter, these men know the whole story about my slipping off the train and coming back to marry Larry. How do they find out things like that? Peter, can't you keep them from putting it in the paper?"

Carol had rushed into his arms. Then, by degrees, Peter heard what had happened. His sister had married the young football hero who had been dropped from college last spring for some escapade and whose disappearance had stirred the sport world.

"I had a tip that Ames was in town, working as a chauffeur or taxi driver," one reporter said to Peter. "The same fellow told me when Ames lost his job, tipped me off to where he was staying. I recognized your sister, did some sleuthing until I found out about the marriage and then came here to get the complete story. And what do I find? Reporters from every sheet in town camping on the doorstep. The same fellow must have told everybody else. Gosh, what a tough break when I thought I had it exclusive."

"Now, if you will just pose with your arm about his shoulder," a camera man was saying persuasively to Carol.

"The idea! I will not."

"I guess they'll have a picture of you in the society files. And I know the files are full of pictures of Ames."

"What does it matter? What difference does it make?" Peter said a bit later. "All that matters is being happy. The next thing is to get you youngsters home."

Carol followed him to the car. "Peter, something has happened to you. Why didn't Ann come?"

Peter told her. And then he was hearing about Ann's visit, her pledge to secrecy.

No use now to be ashamed of his unjust doubts, when a more terrible doubt was tormenting him.

The newspapers apparently thought Carol Kendall was to be congratulated for winning the young man whose football playing had made him an idol. His father had received the news of the marriage over telephone and was coming at once.

It was upon the note of "I can forgive everything except your not taking me into your confidence" that Mrs. Kendall met the situation. She had been influenced by the newspapers. To her amazement Lawrence Ames, and not his marriage to Carol, was the dominant theme of all the articles.

Peter went out to break the news to his grandfather and stayed all night. The elder Kendall was genuinely shocked by the change in his grandson.

Peter looked tired and worn. His eyes were stricken. But the greatest change was in his spirit. He had a weariness of spirit, a letting down, mentally and spiritually. Peter didn't seem to care what happened. The world could go to smash. It already had smashed for Peter.

The labor trouble at the factory had been cleared up. Peter's meeting and his grandfather had revised the salary scale, with substantial wage increases. The arbitration committee had become a permanent organization and differences had been ironed out for the time, at least. Peter's grandfather gave his grandson the credit.

"When he starts something," old Peter said with pride, "he doesn't stop until he finishes it."

Yes, matters had been righted, but the old gentleman thought this only half-heartedly, feeling that things were far from right when young Peter was so unhappy.

"I wish you had never seen that girl, Peter," he said. He had blamed Ann for marrying Peter, but never as he blamed her now for leaving his boy. She must be mad to leave a fine boy like Peter.

Peter went back to town next morning and plunged into work. He had an early dinner and returned to the office. The April day had turned warm, almost summer-like. No night breeze had sprung up to relieve the closeness. The plans he had unrolled lay untouched upon his desk.

The telephone rang. Valeria's pleading voice said, "Peter, I'm lonely. It's deadly here."

Peter was lonely too. And it was deadly where he was.

"Please, I need to get out. Won't you come?"

"Yes, I'll come."

"Soon?"

"Within the hour."

"I may pull you out on a party—just a few friends."

"I'll be there as soon as I drop by the club and change."

"Oh, thank you, darling."

Valeria's eyes were bright with excitement when she put down the telephone. She had hardly dared hope. Like everybody else, Peter could stand only so much unhappiness. She must make the most of this softened mood. If she could only persuade him to commit himself, to promise to start divorce proceedings!

Peter did not drink. But if he could be persuaded to drink a little now, he would fall in with her plans better.

She handed him a cocktail soon after he came. "Just one, you old teetotaler. Peter, you really need to get off the wagon."

He smiled mirthlessly. Did she think that this small drink could chase the devils, get him in the proper party mood?

A gay party was in progress at Dirk's apartment. Glasses were being filled and re-filled as Peter and Valeria entered. Voices too shrill, too loud. Girls sitting close to men, their hands boldly clasped. Light talk and glances holding.

Valeria had said, "We're going to Dirk's. I just want to show you how harmless a place it really is."

"Hello, Peter! Will wonders never cease?" It was Dirk's voice. "Glad Valeria brought you."

"Peter's having something with me," Valeria said, her glance slanting toward Dirk. "One of your famous drinks, Dirk."

Dirk smiled. Valeria was getting ready to put the screws on, was she? Well, it would be fun to watch the little devil.

Peter took the glass, looking down at it darkly. Valeria wanted him to drink. Well, if it gave her any fun, why not? He drank the mixture and put the glass down.

"Let me fix you another."

"Thanks," said Peter, "if you will."

Dirk took the glass and refilled it. After a while he looked at Peter and registered admiration. The fellow was certainly a cool hand. He knew how to hold his liquor. He had heard that Peter Kendall was not a drinking chap. For an amateur he was certain... He was sure that if Peter were... some turmoil was going on inside.

He was right. Peter was watching the frequent inroads on the sandwich plates, glasses being emptied and filled again and again, the lowering of... voices...

He hated Valeria's hot possessive little hand clutching at him.

"Peter, darling, get me a sandwich. There, Dirk. Peter's not drinking enough. Look at that perfect balance."

Peter crossed the room to the table where fresh platters of sandwiches had been placed. Dirk Randall, very much pleased, was talking.

"It's the joke of the season. What? Married her for spite and then falls in love with her. Then the girl lights out—doesn't even want to get well... what the h—!"

Peter can't... I don't like... kind of stories... He... out.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

ROBERT BURTON'S PROPHECY.—The author of "The Anatomy of Melancholy" was one of the most fantastic figures in English literature. He was born on February 8, 1577. In 1620 he made a calculation based on the astrology of his nativity, and predicted that he would die on January 25, 1640. His prediction came true with marvelous precision. His prophetical calculation can be seen on his gravestone at Christ Church cathedral where he is interred.

IN JAIL 500 TIMES.—Elmer "Red" Wolf, 62-year-old character of Atlantic, Ia., is not particularly proud of having been arrested over 500 times in the past 22 years, but he is happy over the fact that he has never paid a fine. Wolf gets in bad with the law in minor ways every week or so, but his good nature and harmless attitude gets him free every time. He says: "My weakness for beer may give me a record—or get me one."

KOLLEGE KAPERS APPEAR MAR. 18

Centenary College Group Will Give Program In Local Auditorium

Kollege Kapers' orchestra will provide the musical background for the variety program that will be given by the Centenary college group on Thursday, March 18, at 8 p.m., in the Ouachita Parish High school auditorium.

With the orchestra are a girls' trio, three male vocalists, three female vocalists, three young women who specialize in tap dancing, and three who are talented pianists. The orchestra is composed of members of the men's football band and has been rehearsing since last October.

In addition to the orchestra and soloists, the performance will include antics by three hilarious comedians, Sammie Peters, Hall McCord, and John Vantrease; a gypsy reading by Shirley Simmons; a piano number by Winifred Boles, who was awarded a place in a nation-wide broadcasting contest; a three-act playlet; a pianologue by Jo Beth Nelson, newcomer to the show, and several skits and other novelty numbers.

The Kapers performance has been presented in cities and towns in the vicinity of Shreveport each week since last December and audiences who have heard the various presentations by this group since it was initiated in 1934, are unanimous in acclaiming the 1937 edition the best in the entire series.

The local appearance is being sponsored by members of the Women's Missionary Society of the First Methodist church.

THE PEOPLES HOMESTEAD & SAVINGS ASS'N

By A. O. Davis, Secretary

MEMBER OF RUSTON GUARD KILLS BOAR

SHAW, La., March 6.—Company F is having a fine time now. We are killing big game every day. Private Lou Walters killed a wild boar, just before the boar charged him, he said. Private Red Vining went on his first detail yesterday and he and Tony Holstead got lost walking up and down the levee.

We boys are now soldiers, marines and levee workers. We ride about 24 miles by water to and from our post, we drill and also watch the levee. Any of you folks need a good boatman, just see us.

Red Watts saw two deer yesterday and tried to snap a picture of them. Just wait till we get back home (if we ever do); we will have lots of tales to tell you people. Well, the next time you hear from us we will have killed about three deer, so some day.

Sincerely,
W. E. BAUGH.

Sign-Up Campaign Will Start Some Time After March 20

That there will be excellent cooperation in the 1937 agricultural conservation program by Ouachita parish farmers is indicated by the large numbers who called at the office of the parish agent during the past week for information as to how the program would apply to their respective farms, stated parish agent, E. R. Strahan, Saturday. Most of them desired to know if they would be safe in planting about the same acreage to cotton as they planted in 1936, and how many acres of soil conserving crops they would be permitted to plant. Mr. Strahan stated that any farmer who cooperated last year could cooperate in 1937 by planting about the same acreage to cotton, or any amount that shows a diversion from the cotton base acreage not in excess of 35 per cent. "It will be necessary to plant as many acres to soil conserving crops, such as peas and beans, as are diverted from cotton plus the normal acreage to conserving crops that was planted before we had any adjustment programs or the number of acres that the individual farmer chooses to name as his conserving base," Mr. Strahan explained. "The payment for diverting from cotton to conserving crop acreage varies with the fertility of the land and the past records of production, but averages slightly more than $10 per acre," he said. Mr. Strahan also stated that it would be possible for a farmer to carry out some soil building practices such as building terraces, plowing under the leaves, vines and stems of conserving crops after harvesting the seeds or any one or more of a dozen other practices, and earn a dollar an acre extra for every acre planted to conserving crops not in excess of the amount named to be planted at the time of signing the initial papers necessary for participation in the program.

"The sign-up campaign is expected to be started some time after March 20," stated Mr. Strahan. "As soon as the blanks are received notice will be given as to the time for farmers to either come to the office of the parish agent or see their committeemen and fill out work sheets and give a schedule of the crops they expect to plant this year. A recent report that farmers were already signing up was in error due to a misinterpretation," stated Mr. Strahan. "The point intended to be conveyed was to the effect that indications pointed to 90 per cent cooperation as compared with 80 per cent in 1936. The increase in cooperation will be due to many farmers signing up this year who did not sign up last year," he said. Mr. Strahan believes the new program is much better than any previous program offered.

RUBY KING ARRESTED ON GRAND LARCENY CHARGE

Ruby King, 25, wife of Max King, was apprehended Saturday at Poplar Bluff, Mo., on a warrant charging her with grand larceny of clothing in Monroe in 1935. She has been sought for nearly two years by the sheriff's department here but eluded arrest until yesterday. A deputy from the sheriff's office will leave today to return her to Monroe.

The woman's husband, Max King, is now serving a long term in Angola prison, after he had been convicted of embezzlement.

Records of the sheriff's office show that the couple appropriated a taxicab here and fled in it to Brookhaven, Miss., where they were apprehended in 1935. They were returned to Monroe and the man was charged with embezzlement and was later convicted and given a long sentence, which he is now serving. His wife was released from custody. However, she was charged later with having stolen clothing of considerable value. It is on a warrant sworn out on this charge that caused her apprehension yesterday in the Missouri city.

TREE PLANTING PROGRAM GIVEN IMPETUS IN STATE

WASHINGTON D. C., March 6—(Special)—With an intensive spring drive begun to plant 2,800,000 more tree seedlings in Louisiana, the reforestation work on sub-marginal land development projects of the resettlement administration is now in full swing, C. B. Baldwin, acting administrator, announced today.

Mr. Baldwin stated that the trees are being planted on seriously eroded land and land no longer productive of crops which has been purchased by the resettlement administration. Approximately 9,000,000 acres of such land have been acquired throughout the country, he said.

A total of 65,000,000 seedlings have already been planted and an additional 50,000,000 are to be planted this spring.

The projects in Louisiana on which the seedlings are to be planted are the northwest Louisiana project consisting of 10,000 acres in Webster and Claiborne parishes, and the Claiborne parish project of 18,000 acres near Homer.

Visitors And Returning Vacationists Center Of Local Activities During Week

Several Teas Claim Society's Attention

Mr. And Mrs. John Sherrouse Enjoy Sea Trip To New York; Mrs. Royster Widely Feted

By Eve Bradford

HOW dramatic life can be! A sunshine flooded day and one's soul soars with the zest of living. A music filled afternoon and one goes home full of dreams. A little giro to old southern gardens and the mind is lifted above the petty things of life. A new hat and we find there is no need for a springtime tonic. A ring on the telephone, a rap at the door, a letter, or an invitation to dinner, and our whole day is changed. The sweet, homely things of life supply all the drama one needs in this old world that is "filled with so many things we all should be as happy as kings."

Last week was an altogether charming one with visitors in the city lending verve to society and winter vacationists returning to fill their own special niche left vacant during their absence. The influenza victims are again breathing deep of the fresh spring air after weeks of close confinement. Most convalescents seized the interlude of quietude to read "Gone with the Wind." Women who read the book fell in love with Rhett Butler and the men fell in love with Scarlett O'Hara. One man who read the book while recuperating from the "flu" wondered why the author created this fascinating creature, Scarlett O'Hara, and then seemed to take a violent dislike to her and proceeded to "give her the works."

The world consists of so many kinds of women who want to be other kinds that one wonders how many women are really contented with themselves. Betty Isaacman, for instance—not content with speaking French fluently, English perfectly and possessing a smattering of Spanish—is now deep in the study of German. By the way, Betty found out how inferior some foreign made products are in comparison with ours. For instance, during a motor trip to Mexico last month, all of the tires were stolen from her automobile and had to be replaced with a Mexican brand. One blowout after another rendered the return trip exceedingly uncomfortable.

Helen Sherrouse sailing to New York on board the Dixie from New Orleans suffered a severe case of mal de mer. After getting her sea legs, however, she was the first one on deck in the morning and the last to say goodnight. Arriving in New York, Helen and John found gorgeous spring weather awaiting them and straightway started on a tour of the shops, the theaters, the night clubs and the restaurants.

Several teas engaged the attention of society last week. Guests dropped in casually at the Cameo room of the Virginia hotel to listen to the charming musical program arranged by the Music guild. Afterward they accepted a perfect cup of tea and nibbled at delicate sweetmeats from silver dishes on a lace covered table. Exquisite flowers in silver bowl decked this lovely table and we take it all as a matter of course, this perfection, this smooth running entertainment; perhaps never give a thought to the back stage, to the women who work all morning, to those who practice and prepare for the program and to those who arrange the homelier details so necessary to a perfect whole.

Suzanne Kellogg trailed flaming chiffon draperies over the polished floors of her lovely home last Thursday when tea was served to those who called to pay their respects to Olivette Royster of Raleigh, N. C. Olivette's eyes, set apart like two Parma violets, have not lost their dreamy beauty. She has not lost her youthful, triste expression or her charming southern drawl even though she has lived away from Dixie for many years. She was wearing on this occasion a simple black dress set off with two patch pockets of rhinestones.

Anna Slagle, wearing an old Colonial costume and walking in the old fashioned gardens of the J. R. Wootens' home (her parents), brought back romantic days that are gone. Snapping her picture as she sat on a rustic bench, surrounded with giant camellia and azalea bushes, sweet olive and fragrant yellow jasmine falling in festoons from the oak trees, was indeed a pleasant experience.

It would seem that no home is now complete without a dog. A dog is a grand thing to have around the place if you are situated so that you can give him a good home and all the daily outings his health requires. You know the old aphorism which says that a person who likes dogs and babies invariably has a kind heart—this is certainly true of Talitha Downes, who has two of the cutest little Chihuahuas you ever saw. They sleep in their twin beds at the foot of her bed—and repay her in devotion for all her kindness. The cunning bulldog of Mrs. George Holmes' is almost human. In fact, he understands every word spoken to him—he "says his prayers," goes to bed when ordered and performs more cute tricks than you can shake a stick at. Frances Smelser's wire-haired terrier was just a puppy when she found it in her stocking Christmas morning bearing a "Happy Christmas" card from Amos. It is now grown and one of the smartest dogs in the canine world. Never was there a smarter dog than Brummy, the Boston bulldog of Violet Meyer. Kitty Morrison's scottie came in a special hamper from the New Orleans kennels a few weeks ago and is now in full possession of her heart and home. She carries it tucked under her arm where ever she goes. The Toulmin Ewings own one of the handsomest German police dogs in the city. He guards young Jimmy with his life and stands sentinel over the Ewing home both day and night. Alice and Ben Dawkins have a faithful chow, who has a reputation for intelligence. He is also most decorative with his soft brown hair and friendly eyes.

For a woman who spends much time alone, a dog will pay more dividends in happiness and satisfaction than money spent on clothes or interior decorations.

The crowning achievement of a most successful season of music will be the appearance in this city of Efrem Zimbalist, world renowned violinist, on March 30 under the direction of the Civic Music association.

Music lovers of this city consider the Zimbalist concert a distinct triumph for those who are seeking to obtain for Monroe a definite cultural foundation.

Although Russian by birth, Zimbalist is in many respects an American artist. He is an American citizen, makes his winter home in New York City and his summer home in Connecticut and has two children born in this country.

Zimbalist was born in Rostov-on-the Don, April 8, 1889. His first teacher was his father, who was an orchestra leader. The boy showed such extraordinary gifts that when he was only nine years old he became first violinist in a grand opera orchestra. And it was not because his father happened to be the distinguished director of the opera house, for the elder Zimbalist was the most exacting master Efrem ever had. It was only at the insistence of the older musicians that the father finally consented to entrust his young son with so important a post.

In 1903 he entered the Imperial Conservatory in Petrograd, studying under Professor Leopold Auer. Graduating, he was awarded the coveted gold medal and the Rubenstein scholarship of 12,000 rubles. He made his Berlin debut at the age of eighteen, appearing later in London and on the continent with great success.

His American debut was made on October 27, 1911, with the Boston Symphony orchestra. On this occasion Zimbalist played the Glazounow Concerto in A minor for the first time in America. He was immediately hailed as an artist of great merit.

In the twenty-five years that have passed since then the name of Zimbalist has become synonymous with great violin music. He stands at the pinnacle of the musical ladder in popularity and prestige. His art has been acclaimed on every continent. He has played in almost every large city in the world. Yet he remains the same unassuming, extremely modest artist that he was when he made his debut.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Isaacman are spending the week-end in New Orleans.

The correct application of skill and training in modern methods enables us to offer a dependable service.

Miss Thornton Weds Cameron C. Minard

Marriage Of Monroe Girl Comes As Complete Surprise; Miss Mays Becomes Bride Of W. H. Cotton

Cupid is no respector of seasons. Not only in the springtime does a young man's fancy lightly turn to thoughts of love, but every month in the year as manifested in the many weddings that have taken place in the past few months.

A marriage announcement coming as a complete surprise to friends at this time is that of Miss Jewel Mae Thornton, daughter of Mrs. Albert Monroe Thornton of this city, and Mr. Cameron Clinton Minard, son of Mrs. Frederick Minard of Clarks, La. The ceremony was solemnized in Hamburg, Ark., on November 29, 1936.

Mr. and Mrs. Minard are now at home to their friends in Columbia, La., where Mr. Minard is engaged in the practice of law. He is a graduate of the Louisiana State university and is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Mrs. Minard, popular member of Monroe's younger set, is a graduate of Lindenwood college, St. Charles, Mo. Mrs. Minard has traveled extensively since graduation, not only in this country but in Europe, where she spent last summer.

Claiming the affectionate interest of friends in this section of the state was the marriage of Miss Harriet Crawford Mays, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Holland Mays of Ruston, and Mr. William Howell Cotton of Ville Platte, Thursday, February 25, at Trinity Methodist curch, with Rev. Guy M. Hicks officiating.

Luxuriant palms, urns overflowing with white carnations linked together with ropes of white satin, against a background of myriad cathedral tapers in pyramid formation, formed the setting for the service.

While the guests were being seated, Mrs. S. L. White rendered an organ concert and also accompanied the vocalist, Miss Juanita Cotten, sister of the bridegroom, who sang in splendid voice "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly." The bridal chorus from Lohengrn was rendered as a processional.

Miss Virginia Mays, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Llewellyn Breed and Miss Sara McDonald. They were charmingly attired in colonial dresses of white taffeta with bands of American Beauty trimming bodice and skirt. They carried colonial bouquets of American Beauty roses tied with silver ribbon.

Mr. Cotten had as his best man his brother, Mr. Troy Cotten, and the ushers were Mr. Billy Mitchell and Mr. Howard Kidd.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore the handsome white satin and princess lace wedding gown worn by her sister, Mrs. Byron Cann on her wedding day. A bridal veil of misty illusion was caught to the hair with a chaplet of orange blossoms. A gorgeous bouquet of waxen gardenias and valley lilies was carried.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for the wedding party and a few friends and their escorts. Mrs. Mays received, wearing a beautiful gown of beige lace, with corsage of white camellias. Mrs. Burnham, mother of the bridegroom, wore a silver cloth gown with red rose corsage.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Cotten left for New Orleans and points along the coast for a brief honeymoon, after which they will be at home in Ville Platte.

Mrs. Mattie Trisler of Sterlington announces the marriage of her daughter, Vivian, to Mr. Herbert Pace of Marshall, Tex., Sunday evening, February 28, at 8:30 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. B. F. Wallace in the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. B. C. Pearce, of Sterlington, with a few intimate friends and members of the family present.

The bride wore a smart grey tailleur with grey accessories and exquisite corsage of bride's roses and valley lilies.

Mr. and Mrs. Pace are spending their honeymoon in Hot Springs, Ark., and upon their return will be at home to their friends in Marshall, where Mr. Pace is associated with the Southwestern Gas and Electric company.

Saravette Royster Honored At Dance

Saravette Royster of Raleigh, N. C., who is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Sallie Ruffin, and her aunt, Mrs. Gladys Sperry, was introduced to a few members of Monroe's younger beau monde at a dancing party at the Ruffin home Friday night between the hours of 7:30 and 9.

Wearing a bouffant pink taffeta evening frock with corsage of pink sweet peas, Saravette stood to receive the guests. Mary Stuart Kellogg, lovely young daughter of Mrs. Robert Kellogg, wearing a crisp blue taffeta, floor length, evening model with corsage of pink roses, assisted in the courtesies.

Dancing, the evening's diversion, was enjoyed in the spacious reception suite, hall and dining room en suite.

The evening was not given up entirely to dancing, as Mrs. Sperry arranged several entertainment features with Saravette in costume, giving an exhibition of her skill as an acrobatic performer. Lovell Hayden gave a clever tap number, and Mary Stuart Kellogg and her dancing partner, Wharton Brown, entertained with a waltz number.

Art Appreciation Develops In City

Fine Arts Club Will Stage Exhibit From Sophie Newcomb At Northeast Center Monday Night

Women's clubs in this city are directly responsible for the building up of an art-appreciative clientele during the past year. Art appreciation is developing in Monroe through a variety of stimuli which have achieved a definite cultural foundation.

Quite an achievement for members of the Fine Arts club will be the art exhibit and pottery display from Sophie Newcomb college, Monday night at Northeast Center of L. S. U. In conjunction with this colorful exhibit, a program of unusual charm will be rendered, outstanding being the presentation of Miss Grace Inglesdue in dramatic readings.

The public is cordially invited to attend the art and pottery exhibit.

The program to be presented is as follows: [illegible]

Members of the orchestra are Mrs. Nell Gandell, Mrs. [illegible] Selig, Mrs. Mary [illegible], Mr. Alfred Henren, [illegible], Mr. [illegible] McKom, Mr. James Bradley, Mr. Byron [illegible], Mr. T. McCrea, [illegible]; Mrs. G. C. [illegible], director and pianist, Mr. Harold [illegible] and Mr. George Vaughan [illegible].

Hosts and hostesses on the occasion will be Mrs. [illegible], Miss Stella Vance, Miss Elenna [illegible], Miss Suzanne Hardy, Mrs. Charles Gandell and Mr. Joe Camp.

Review Club Holds Meeting

Mrs. Ben Breard, president of the Review club, presided over the business meeting at the home of Mrs. E. R. Strahan Monday afternoon.

Mrs. C. B. Braun gave a comprehensive lecture on committee reports explaining minority reports, appointments, special committees, committee meetings and power of committees.

Mrs. A. Givens gave John Masefield's "Bird of Dawning," developing Masefield's art as a teller of sea yarns.

"The Bird of Dawning" is the story of a ship race from China to England in the early 60's. The ship which gives title to the book is entirely ignored in the first half of the book. The characters leave China on a ship known as the Black Gauntlet. The Black Gauntlet is struck by a steamer and sinks. The 16 members who were saved in a lifeboat come upon the "Bird of Dawning," one of the square riggers in the race, abandoned by its crew due to a peculiar religious belief of the captain. With Cruiser as their captain they again enter the race and after a close run, win the race and London prize.

Mrs. Chester Nenny gave T. E. Lawrence's "Seven Pillars of Wisdom," so cleverly one could not fail to catch the hidden metaphysis of the book, the clear cut images, Lawrence's beautiful adventure of life, even though Lawrence's prose was affected and awkward at times.

Seven Pillars of Wisdom, said Mrs. Nenny, is a strong book, a fascinating book, even an exasperating one. It is a 300,000-word account of Lawrence's exploits in Arabia; but it is more than that. It is a minute account of Arabian customs and morals, a fearlessly frank portrayal of allied officers with whom he came into contact, a treatise on the metaphysics of war—and a mystical philosophy.

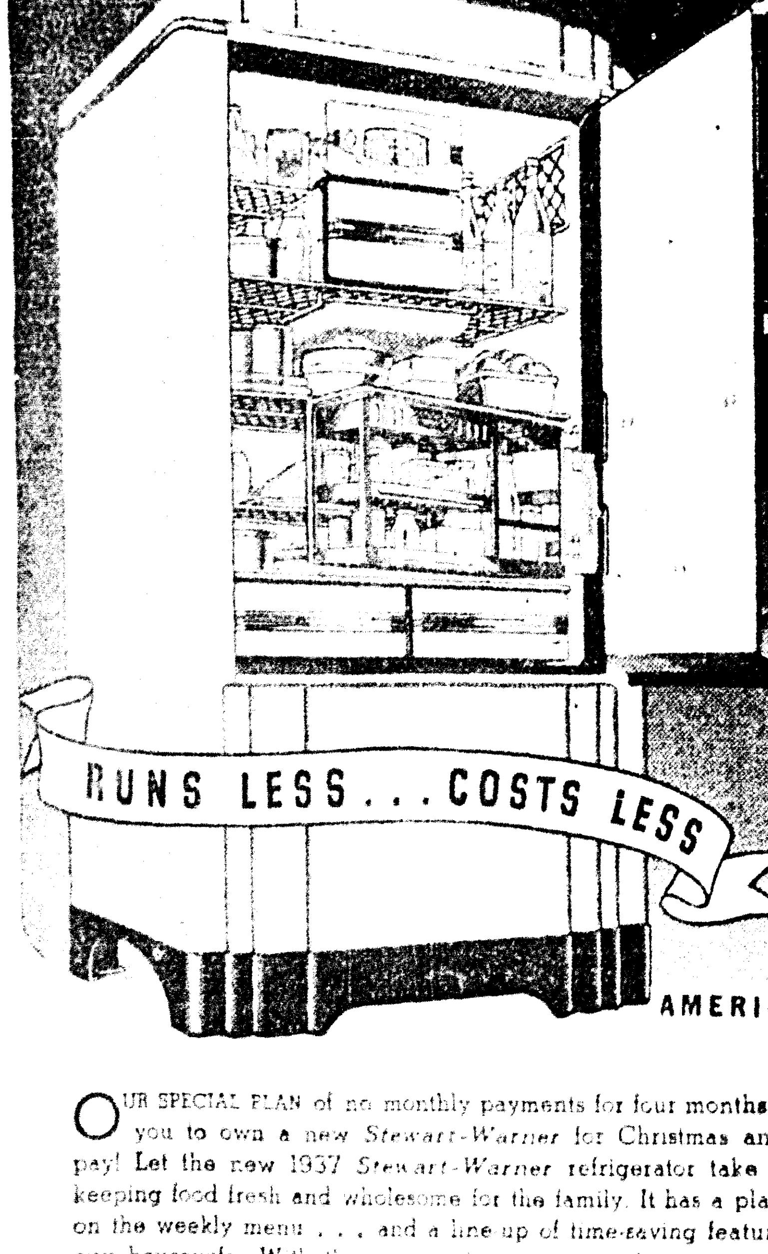

Those present and enjoying these lectures were Mesdames C. B. Braun, Ben Breard, Henry Colbert, E. P. Cudd, Fred Fudickar, Roy Hale, A. R. Holloway, B. W. Leigh, C. V. McGimsey, Chester Nenny, T. C. Rowland, Walter Rhodes, E. R. Strahan, DeWitt Henry, Allen Givens, Crawford Young and Mrs. Spinks.

Mr. Walter J. Meyer and Mr. M. C. McDonald have returned from New York City, where they attended the annual convention of the American Paper and Pulp association.

Miss Beryl Madison attended the marriage of Miss Dale Simpson and Mr. E. A. Pierce in Bastrop on Friday.

Mr. Simon Friedlander is now convalescing from a recent serious illness.

Tea And Soiree Among Outstanding Events Of Past Week

Mrs. Walter Kellogg Honors Mrs. Royster

Interesting Affair Held By Music Guild At Hotel Virginia; Mrs. Coon Presides

The past week was not without charm. Most of the entertaining had to do with music, fireside conversation, tea sipping and informal luncheons bringing intimates together around flower banked, candlelit tables.

The serving of tea forms a charming background for social entertaining. This winter hostesses have extended more than ever before this simple afternoon tea into impressive formal teas to which they bid their friends, almost en masse.

Claiming prominence among the beautifully appointed teas of the season was Mrs. Walter Kellogg's on Thursday when she received between the hours of 4:30 and 6 complimentary to Mrs. Wilbur Royster of Raleigh, N. C.

The Kellogg home, recently redecorated and refurnished was en suite with Venetian blinds drawn against the bleak, stormy weather. Bright spring flowers overflowing from classic shaped urns banked the drawing room, solarium and dining room.

Mrs. Kellogg received in a semi-evening model of carnelian red chiffon. She was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Gladys Sperry, in a black chiffon model with corsage of white gardenias and her grandmother, Mrs. Sally Ruffin, in black velvet and corsage of white roses.

Mrs. Morton Braswell, assisting in the courtesies, wore a garnet colored velvet model.

Mrs. Royster wore a black chiffon and silver model with silver slippers and white camellias at her throat. Her lovely young daughter, Saravette, wearing a bouffant frock of pink taffeta, came in for considerable attention from old friends of her mother who remember her affectionately as Olivette Broadway.

Guests dropping in casually during the receiving hours were invited to the dining room where the tea table overlaid with handsome Chinese linen and embroidery, had for central decor a cluster of tulips, freesias and sweet peas in antique silver bowl. Miss Elizabeth Kennedy, in twilight blue chiffon with pink roses at the neckline, presided over the tea and coffee service. A variety of delicious confections, served on silver salvers, were passed among the guests.

An outpouring of beautiful music featured the musical soiree sponsored by the Music Guild in the Cameo room of the Virginia hotel during the twilight hours on Wednesday.

The affair was quite elegant with a galaxy of beautifully frocked hostesses extending a welcome and presiding over a flower adorned, silver appointed tea table.

Music flooded the environs of the Cameo room and private dining room following the introductory remarks by Mrs. J. Norman Coon, who filled most graciously the role of speaker in the absence of the guild's president, Mrs. H. M. James.

The program was presented as follows:

Chorus—Nightfall in Granada by Bueno. The Old Refrain by Fritz Kreisler. First sopranos: Mrs. Paul Newman, Mrs. C. W. Oseland, Mrs. Ruth Rasbury, Mrs. Marvyn Johnson. Second sopranos: Mrs. Chester L. Greene, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mrs. C. S. Gaushell. Altos: Mrs. Dallas Goss, Mrs. Louise Averette, Mrs. Raymond Spence. Accompanist: Mrs. C. E. Woodham.

Violin duet, Barcarolle, from Tales of Hoffman. Mrs. Louise Averette, Mrs. C. Woodham. Accompanied by Mrs. Raymond Spence.

Two-piano number, Sereneta, by Moskowski. Mrs. Dallas Goss, Mrs. Raymond Spence, first piano; Mrs. C. E. Woodham, Mrs. Charles Gaushell, second piano.

Readings—Hullo, by Foss; Sis' Bes' Feller, selected. Mrs. J. Norman Coon.

Piano solo—Rhapsody in G Minor, by Brahms, Mrs. Dallas Goss.

Violin solo—Mrs. Louise Averette, accompanied by Mrs. Raymond Spence.

Two-piano number—Overture from Carmen, by Bizet. Mrs. Dallas Goss, Mrs. Raymond Spence, first piano; Mrs. C. E. Woodham, Mrs. Charles Gaushell, second piano.

Vocal solo—Habanera, from Carmen, by Bizet, Mrs. Ruth Rasbury; accompanied by Mrs. Dallas Goss.

Chorus—One Fleeting Hour, by Lee. Pale Moon, by Logan.

A charming interlude during which tea and luscious confections were served, climaxed the program.

Mrs. Chester L. Greene and Mrs. Paul Newman presided over the flower banked candle-lit table, graced with handsome silver service.

Junior League Talks Baby Clinic Program

Spring Style Revue Also Discussed At Luncheon; Much Work Accomplished During Life Of Group

Members of the Junior Charity league, lunching on Saturday at the Virginia hotel, decided that the time has come to talk of many things. Their spring style revue, for instance, without which the spring season would never be quite complete. Their talk also drifted to their baby clinic in St. Francis sanitarium where there is always something real and vital taking place.

Mrs. Harold Monk, chairman, reported that 260 patients have been treated in the clinic since it was organized a few years ago. Two pneumonia cases were successfully treated last week. The children were kept in the clinic nine days during which time they received all the care and expert medical attention necessary to restore them to health.

Mrs. J. B. Dawkins, chairman of the social service committee, reported that nine babies are now receiving a quart of milk daily. Each time the clinic is held 15 or more babies receive free medical aid.

This work accomplished through the medium of the Junior Charity league goes on day after day, year after year. The work is not spasmodic, something that flares high and then dies. It is a steady flame that grows brighter with the passing weeks and claims more and more attention from members who make sacrifices, socially, so that they can respond to the demands made upon them.

Attending the luncheon on Saturday were Mmes. H. Monk, B. A. Thornhill, James Trousdale, Walter Kellogg, James A. Noe, Floyd Martin, Robert Kellogg, D. T. Milam, Nathan Gaston, R. W. Last Year's Hats Definitely Passe

Spring is here and the old felt that served so faithfully during the drab winter days is now most definitely passe. Don't make the mistake, however, of trotting out your last summer's bonnet—it simply can't be done.

It happens at least once in every woman's life, and you may remember when you paid more for a new hat than the budget allowed and assuaged your conscience by silently promising yourself you would wear it again next year. "It's really a very advanced style," you assured yourself, "and I'm sure it will look perfectly all right for another season." Proudly you blossomed forth in the expensive hat and in every shop window you'd primp, passing by, serene in the thought of having bested the budget.

The next year you fondly lifted that hat from its tissue paper nest and found it just as good as new. "It does pay to buy a well made hat," you commented, but that was before you looked at yourself in the mirror. You surveyed yourself a trifle dubiously, tilting the hat this way and that. Could it be the crown was just a trifle too high for this season's fashion? Perhaps if you tried turned it up on the side— After several minutes of waning enthusiasm you reluctantly laid it back in its box, muttering something about "last year's bird nest." Anyway you were a philosopher; you knew if you hadn't spent the money for the hat it would have gone for something else.

If the hat didn't eventually find its way into the hands of the old clothes man or land in the rubbish heap, and you came across it later on house-cleaning days, you simply had to sit down and laugh. "Heavens, did I ever wear that? Thank goodness the styles today aren't so freakish!"

Mr. and Mrs. John Sherrouse returned home last week from a steamer trip to New York City on board the Dixie sailing from New Orleans.

Mrs. Eli Marks of Houston is a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Friedlander.

Miss Suzanne Hirsch is enjoying a visit in New Orleans as the guest of Miss Fannie Dennery.

Bernard Smith, student at Kemper military institute, is enjoying a mid-term vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Cruse.

5th District P.-T. A. Meets At Winnsboro

Education As It Relates To Children And The Work Of Mothers Stressed At Well Attended Session

WINNSBORO, La., March 6.—(Special)—W. B. Glover, principal of the Winnsboro High school, speaking before members of the Fifth District P.-T. A., who met at Winnsboro Saturday, on the "Contribution of the P.-T. A. to the School," stressed the fact that education today chiefly concerns the welfare of the child and should include a program which would give every child an opportunity for physical, mental, social and spiritual growth.

"Such a program must deal with the whole life of the child from birth to maturity," Mr. Glover told the members. "The momentous task of developing and putting this program into operation falls upon the home, the school and the community."

Mr. Glover declared that the P.-T. A. contributes to the betterment of health in the schools; assists in student aid, through community betterment the P.-T. A. makes a contribution to the school; helps in the development of public opinion; serves as an invaluable institution in interpreting the school to the community; makes an important contribution to the school through its study classes and makes an effort to safeguard the social, recreational and religious life of the community.

Excellent care and instruction will be given mothers and expectant mothers who register with the clinic, Dr. Guerriero said. The clinic will be self-supporting, with the exception of hospitalization costs, he asserted. A fund is being raised to provide for hospitalization in cases where the costs cannot otherwise be provided.

Auxiliary To Handle Conference Program

Mrs. Lena M. Morrow, president of the Rodney J. Hobbs auxiliary, has received word that the ladies auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars has been selected to supervise arrangements for the 1939 women's patriotic conference on national defense.

The V. F. W. auxiliary was elected by ballot to have the chairmanship by extension committee, at the close of the twelfth annual woman's patriotic conference on national defense held in Mayflower hotel, Washington, D. C., January 26, 27 and 28.

The conference officially opened with a mass meeting, with the processional of officers and presidents of the participating organizations, preceded by the colors of each organization.

National District Council Member Frances Fullam and National Historian Christine Tew were the pages for the ladies auxiliary. The processional was arranged and directed by National President Gladys Mooney.

The keynote of the conference was sounded by Everett M. Dirksen, congressman from Illinois, on the sentiment of organized patriotic women toward national defense. Josh Lee, senator from Oklahoma, a member of the V. F. W., stressed the importance of a national defense program.

Following the retirement of colors on Thursday, the twelfth women's patriotic conference on national defense was closed, to be opened next year by the gavel of the national president of the ladies auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The Hobbs auxiliary will hold their regular meeting Thursday night. President Morrow urges every member to be present, as there will be business of importance. Refreshments will be served.

'Doll's House' To Be Presented

The third major production of this season of the Monroe Little Theater will take place next Thursday at which time Ibsen's "Doll's House" will be presented by a cast of characters selected with splendid discrimination by the director, Louis Guerriero.

In presenting his classical drama, members of the Little Theater will contribute something out of the ordinary to the artistic side of life in this city. Members of the board are most desirous that all supporters and friends of drama be present on this occasion, not only for the purpose of lending their moral support but to witness one of the most artistic achievements in the history of the Little Theater.

This play, as most persons know, revolves around the struggles of Nora Helmer, who emerges from a child-like existence to that of a mature individual.

The role of Nora Helmer is filled in capable manner by Enla Davenport. Other members of the cast are Thomas Davenport, Eugene Chapman, Kathleen Cox, Louis Guerriero and Sara Larche.

Mrs. Louis Milner Entertains Club

FHA'S INSURING OFFICES STUDY TREND OF COSTS

Special Course Offered For Information Of Representatives

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A special course of training for representatives of the federal housing administration's insuring offices is being provided to enable them to keep accurately informed concerning costs entering into the construction of residential properties, according to Administrator Stewart McDonald.

"This phase of the activities of the housing administration assumes greater importance at this particular time," Mr. McDonald said, "due to the upward trend in costs in the building industry in general."

It is the policy of the housing administration, it was explained, to keep the trained underwriting personnel in the various offices throughout the country up to date in checking costs, so that they may best determine the relationship of such trends to property valuation.

In addition to this phase of training, all technical personnel of the housing administration are instructed in every phase of underwriting principles, methods, and procedures during the training conferences. At the conclusion of courses individuals are thoroughly examined and rated according to ability, experience and aptitude.

Compact, Convenient Cottage

This brick cottage provides comfortable quarters for the average small family. The simple design is in excellent taste and no modern convenience has been sacrificed to compactness. The house was built in Foxcroft, Va., at a cost of $4,990. William L. Harris was the architect. The exterior is of brick and there are five rooms and bath on the first floor. A room could be finished upstairs at a later time if the owner should so desire. The small kitchen is at the rear of the house and is next to a laundry room. A special bin has been provided for fuel and there is ample storage space. Each bedroom has a large closet and a place for linens has been provided in the hall. The cottage was financed by a single mortgage insured by the Federal Housing Administration. The monthly payment, including interest, part principal, hazard insurance, and taxes is $35.91.

Construction, Operating Costs Held Down By Low Ceilings

The question of ceiling heights is one that has been discussed and disputed for years, and had not the necessity of economy weighed heavily on the side of low ceilings the debate would doubtless still be raging.

The urge to cut down in every possible way on the unnecessaries in planning has won many converts to the side of the low-ceiling advocates, and only the few who can afford it still remain in the ranks of those who prefer high ceilings.

It is probably just as well, for high ceilings do not go with small rooms, and the present-day tendency toward compactness which design and planning have shown, not only to hold down construction costs but operating costs as well, has called for rooms that are only large enough to perform their functions comfortably but without waste.

This new technique in house design has made the home a more efficient place to run, and one of the main items considered is heating cost and efficiency. High ceilings, of course, increase this cost, as there must be more heat to take care of the increased space such ceilings provide.

The old concept that low ceilings made for a warm house in summer, while true if compared to a house with high ceilings and high windows, is not true if these windows are low. But such windows go only with a large house and would be quite out of keeping with the typical home of today. If the heads of the windows are above the human head line, so that the hot layer of air that gathers at the ceiling may be drained off, a low-ceilinged room may be quite comfortable.

Insulation has also helped to protect the house from summer heat and is another factor in making low ceilings possible.

Easy Access To Plumbing Pipes Handy In Repair

In the installation of plumbing equipment in bathrooms and kitchens, very often plumbing pipes within walls are enclosed without any means of access in case of trouble. Because of this practice when plumbing is being installed in a new dwelling, or when a dwelling already erected is being modernized, the owner should request the plumber to make sure that an access panel is provided so that any traps and valves concealed within walls may be made accessible.

This is particularly important at the piping end of built-in bath tubs because only through an access panel either in the wall or in the floor may the trap be reached for cleaning.

NEUTRAL TONE FOR TREELESS HOUSES

Large frame houses in cities on ordinary lots where there are few trees should not be painted white. This tends to increase their apparent size and bulk. To make the building look smaller, a misty neutral body tone with a slightly lighter or darker trim is suggested.

The modernization credit plan of the Federal Housing administration program makes the paintings of buildings possible.

Heat From Sun Can Be Utilized For Use In Home

In warm climates, or in any area where there are many clear sunny days, domestic hot water may be provided by utilization of radiant heat from the sun. The most common form of solar water heater consists of a labyrinth pipe coil encased in a rectangular box, approximately 4 feet by 6 feet, the interior of the box and the pipe coil being painted black, the box being covered with a weather-tight glass cover.

The solar water-heating unit may be mounted on a flat roof, but the best location is on a sloping roof with a southern exposure. It is necessary that the upper end of the coil be connected to a hot-water tank above the highest point of the coil in such a manner that as the water is heated in the solar heater it will rise by expansion and flow into the storage tank. Other than this one precaution the piping connections for the storage tank and for the solar heater are the same as for similar conventional equipment. It is advisable that the storage tank be oversized and well insulated in order to provide for cloudy periods, and it is very often good practice to install a simple accessory heater operated either by gas, oil, coal, or electricity.

Appropriate water-heating systems are required when properties are to be financed under the insured mortgage system of the Federal Housing administration.

The most common fallacy concerning the peacock is that it spreads its tail for admiration. Its tail feathers are short and quite undistinguished. What it spreads are its covert feathers, which lie just in front of the tail feathers.

EUROPE'S HOUSING PROBLEM SUBJECT IN REPORT TO FHA

Citizenship Improves With Proper Home Environment, American Finds

Joseph W. Catharine, who is president of and has been associated for 31 years with the Chauncey Real Estate company, which has operated in Brooklyn, N. Y., since 1843, has recently returned from Europe, where he inspected and studied housing conditions in Great Britain and on the continent. Mr. Catharine is a former president of the Real Estate Association of New York and is vice president of the National Association of Real Estate boards. His observations as a practical real estate man are set forth in a report made to Stewart McDonald, federal housing administrator.

"Curing the condition of inadequate housing has resulted in a pronounced improvement of citizenship and character of those assisted," Mr. Catharine said. He was particularly impressed by the building of the new town of Welwyn, which is located on a railroad about 20 miles from London, England. Planned for 40,000 inhabitants, it is complete with every element required of a town. Surrounding the tract is a large stretch of open country laid out for park purposes and to guard against the encroachment of other cities.

Sale Or Rent

Its detached and semi-detached houses rent for from $250 to $750 annually, and they may be purchased for sums ranging upward from $1,750.

In his report to the housing administrator, Mr. Catharine describes the five-year program of the city of Edinburgh, Scotland, which calls for the annual construction of 1,500 houses erected for dispossessed tenants from slum areas and overcrowded buildings. Plans for the development of housing for other cities in Scotland were also described.

In Belgium and The Netherlands Mr. Catharine collected a great deal of data. He was especially attracted by the houses built in The Netherlands for elderly couples. These houses, consisting mostly of four rooms, rent for $2.50 per week.

German Developments

Among the housing developments Mr. Catharine visited in Germany was the celebrated Siemens City, about 10 miles from Berlin. This project was founded by the Siemens-Halske company, a large electrical concern comparable to our General Electric company. The development was financed in part by the workers, the company and the government.

In Italy, Mr. Catharine inspected several large developments in the heart of the city of Rome and studied the Italian government's 50-year mortgage loan system. He also studied the French government's 1928 system of mortgage loans made for approximately 85 per cent of the valuation, running for 25 years and requiring liquidation during that period.

Paint And Light Combine To Give Shop Brilliance

Store lighting demands thoughtful consideration. Successfully operated grocery stores use white or light-colored walls and ceilings in combination with adequate lighting to promote interior brilliance.

The intense light enforces the maintenance of spotless cleanliness in the store, otherwise delinquencies in this direction are made obvious to customers, for strong light which makes cleanliness attractive also makes dirt visible and offensive.

Modern wiring with supplementary fixtures as well as the interior and exterior painting of stores, may be financed through credit obtained from private financial institutions insured by the federal housing administration.

WRAPPING CLOSET GREAT CONVENIENCE

One of the most annoying things in a busy housewife's day is a search for string and paper to wrap packages for mailing. Convenient places for storing paper, twine, tissue paper, labels, scissors, etc., may be built in the back of closet doors, in shelves under bookcases, or in linen closets. Space for such provisions may be planned when building a home under the insured mortgage system of the Federal Housing administration.

STYLE COORDINATION HELPS APPEARANCE

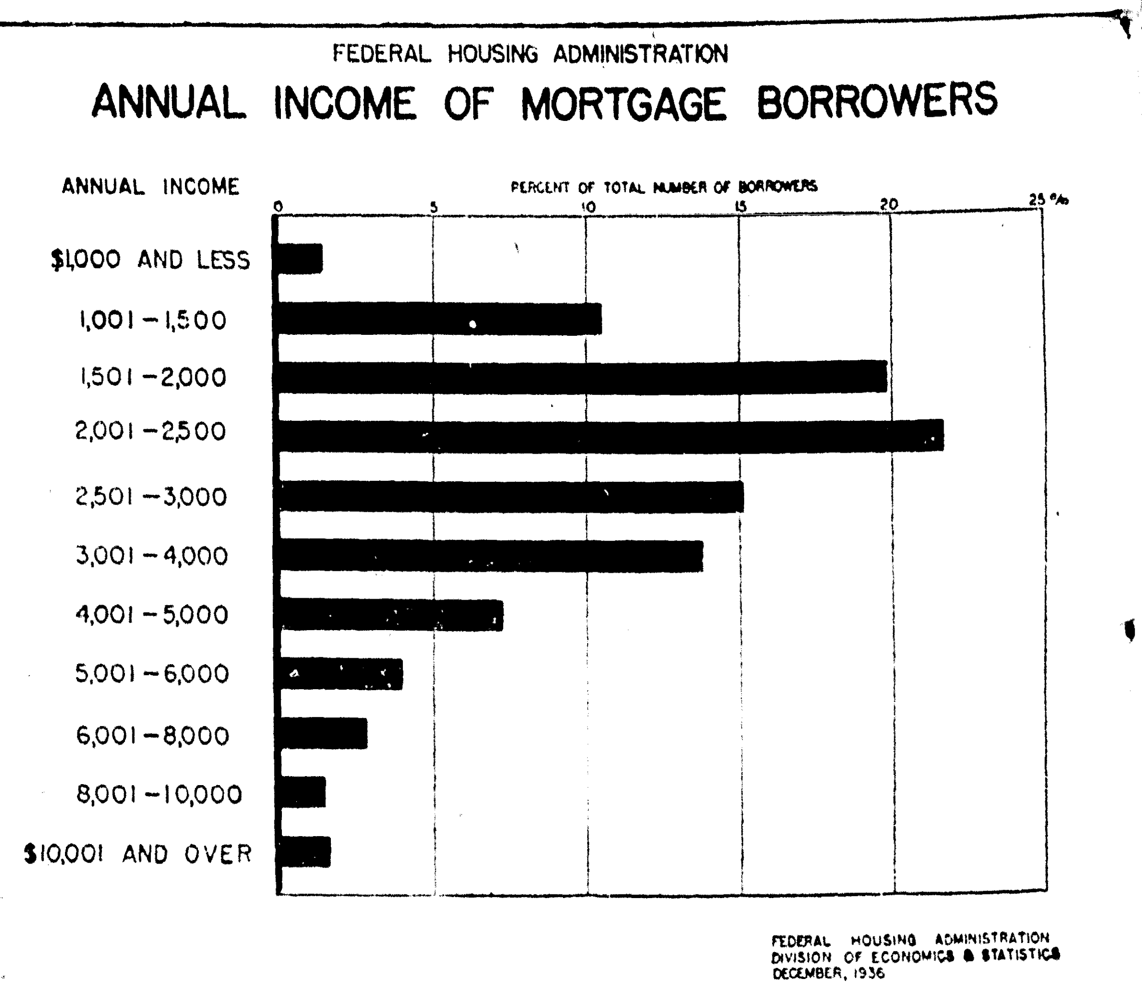

New houses should conform in style and coloring to the general trend of the locality in which they are built and to the neighboring houses. This is one of the considerations when property is financed under the insured mortgage system of the Federal Housing administration.

FHA IS PERMANENT

The national housing act does not expire next April or next July as some seem to think. The act is permanent legislation, and the federal housing administration is a permanent governmental agency. The modernization credit plan expires April 1, 1937. Treasury guarantees of housing administration insurance fund debentures ends July 1, 1937, unless extended by congress, but insurance of home mortgages continues with a fund that now totals $15,000,000. This fund is increasing at the rate of $500,000 each month.

NO PAPER

Where solid sheathing is used on roofs under wood shingles no building paper should be placed over the sheathing; it is likely to rot the shingles.

HELP FOR HOME BUILDERS BEGUN

Movement Started In Monroe Through Cooperation Of Varied Interests

A movement in the interest of better construction, which is regarded as of notable benefit to the building public, and particularly to home builders, has just been inaugurated in this city by a group of leading local retail lumber dealers, in cooperation with the Southern Pine association, representing the manufacturers.

In order to assure that home builders may receive for their homes the correct grades and quality of southern pine lumber that they specify and pay for, and to certify that it is properly manufactured and seasoned to the required moisture content for durability and satisfactory service, the lumber dealers and manufacturers are conducting in this community a campaign to acquaint the building public with the advantages of correct construction methods and the use of good quality lumber in their homes, and are providing the services of an official SPA inspector.

This lumber expert will be available on request and without any charge whatever, to individual home builders, architects, contractors and financing agencies, for consultation on home building problems, kinds and grades of lumber to use, proper construction methods, and to check the lumber used in homes on the job to ascertain whether it is correctly manufactured and graded, and seasoned to the required moisture content.

The lumbermen explain that in years gone by, when there was considerable home building activity and augmented demand for homes, there sprang up a type of hasty, flimsy construction which is commonly designated as "jerry-building." In consequence of poor construction methods, the use of green and inferior quality and grades of lumber, the lack of competent inspection and supervision—all of which are common faults of "jerry-building"—there resulted much dissatisfaction with home-owning on the part of many citizens.

Victims of "jerry-builders," and persons whose homes or other structures were built with green, inferior quality, poorly manufactured and unseasoned lumber, and without regard to proper use of certain grades for particular purposes, suffered monetary losses, discomfort and disappointment in their homes. Prevention of these abuses of the past in home building today, is one of the chief aims of the local lumber dealers and the SPA manufacturers.

Information concerning the services of the lumber expert and other details of the better construction campaign may be obtained from the series of advertisements being carried in this newspaper's building section or from any of the local participating lumber dealers, who are H. R. Hayes Lumber company, Parlor City Lumber company, Perry Lumber company, Slagle-Johnson Lumber company, J. C. Steele Lumber company and Superior Lumber company.

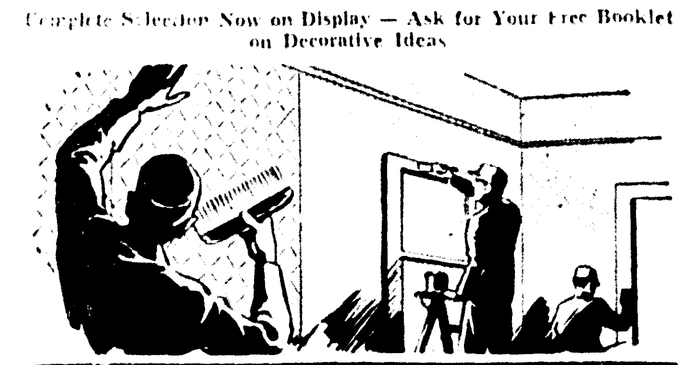

REFRIGERATOR NEEDS SPACE ABOVE FOR AIR

If a kitchen cabinet is to be installed over a mechanical refrigerator, it must be hung so that there is at least six inches of space between the top of the refrigerator and the bottom of the cabinet. This is to allow the heated air from the refrigerator to escape.

When your home needs painting, it needs it. But no need now to cut into your savings to pay for it! Here's a simple, reasonable Time-Payment Plan : : : "Paint Today, Months to Pay." No down payment : : : as long as 18 months to pay : : : covers cost of both paint and labor. Don't put off badly needed painting : : : see us for details about the Pittsburgh Time-Payment Plan.

GROWTH OF N. Y.'S RESIDENTIAL AREA TRACED IN ARTICLE

Topography Modified Basic Principles Of City Development

WASHINGTON, D. C. The extraordinary topography of New York City, which makes it unique among American cities, has modified but has not nullified the basic principles of city residential growth, it is revealed in the third of a series of articles by Dr. Homer Hoyt of the federal housing administration, in the ... mortgage portfolio.

Extreme Simplicity

FIRST FLOOR

This extremely simple home has been planned to accommodate two people. It has an extra large living room and a good-sized bedroom with bath and dressing room attached. A well-ventilated kitchen and a heater room and terrace complete the layout. This home obviously will not accommodate more than two people comfortably, but a couple will find it well laid out and adequate. The drop in the heater-room floor is to allow better circulation for the heating system.

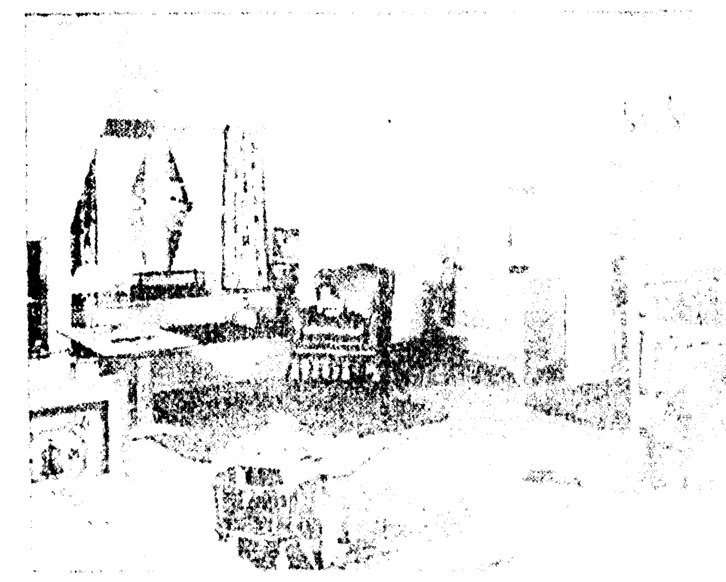

The architectural firm of Miller, Martin & Lewis designed the house, to be built in Tuscaloosa, Ala. The house cost $2,... and the lot an additional $..0. The Federal Housing Administration insured a $2,... mortgage on the property, on which monthly payments amount to $29.70.

For Safe, Healthful Play

Attic rooms or spare bedrooms lend themselves readily to conversion into charming playrooms, as is illustrated in the above photograph. A wide variety of modern floor coverings, built-in shelves, bookcases, desks, etc., may add to the comfort of such a room. The appointments that help to provide recreation for younger children may be added to suit the individual taste. Such a room is ideal for every day play and especially as a haven during inclement weather.

Thrilling 'Black Legion' Film At Paramount Tuesday

Bogart Tops Cast In New Thrill Film

Startling Story From Pages Of Newspapers Is Shown On Local Screen

THE films write a page of current history in "Black Legion," a thrilling melodrama produced by Warner Bros., which will open at the Paramount theater Tuesday.

Recently, in Michigan, a band of masked and hooded men took the law in their own hands and killed their chosen enemies without semblance of justice or mercy.

Newspaper accounts of its activities shocked the law-abiding elements of the entire country. Outraged opinion demanded swift justice and got it. Confessional testimony of the chief suspect brought out incredible ruthlessness on the part of the night riders.

On the mere rumor that a man had beaten his wife, the man was killed. That the rumor was without the least foundation made this lawless execution the more horrible.

In another case, some of the members—according to the confession of the suspect—deliberately shot a colored citizen because they wanted "to see how it felt to kill a negro."

Investigation clearly showed that the Black Legion was founded on the prejudices, race-hatred and bigotry of half-baked mentalities, herded together by glib organizers, who were making fortunes out of the sale of hooded gowns and firearms.

The story of the organization as it is filmed is the more dramatic for being based on fact. The havoc wrought in the families of its victims, as well as in the families of its members is stark melodrama.

The main character in the screenplay is a young workingman deluded into the belief that it is a duty to take the law into his own hands.

Because the job which he thought he deserved was given to a foreigner, he feels that he has been cheated of his rights as an American citizen.

By so doing, he spoils a beautiful romance, utterly destroys the happiness of his neighbors, and in the end kills his own best friend. The part is played by Humphrey Bogart, who was the outstanding bandit in "Petrified Forest."

As a picture of an actual phase of America's complicated social struggle, "Black Legion" is said to be unusually interesting and possessed of greater dramatic force than any previous movie "from the headlines."

Dick Foran, Erin O'Brien-Moore, Helen Flint, Ann Sheridan, Joseph Sawyer and other well known players are among the principals. Archie Mayo directed the picture from a screen play by Abem Finkel and William Wister Haines.

LOCAL MEN ATTEND LEGION MEETING

Dr. C. L. Mengis, commander of the L. B. Faulk post of the American Legion, and Sam Orchard, fifth district legion commander, will head a group from this district who will attend an executive board meeting of the Louisiana department held in New Orleans this morning.

One of the chief features of the meeting will be the setting of dates for the holding of the annual convention in Monroe next July. Dates have been tentatively announced but were later changed, and the new ones will be determined at this meeting.

The object will be to determine dates that will not conflict with state conventions of the legion that will be held in Mississippi and Arkansas. In this way many of the national legion officers will be enabled to attend all three conventions.

PARAMOUNT

Playing at the Paramount theater today and Monday, the new star Sonja Henie in "One in a Million" with Don Ameche, Adolph Menjou, Arline Judge and Ned Sparks.

The story of Sonja's first screen vehicle, written by Leonard Praskins and Mark Kelly, has to do with a troupe of American entertainers in straitened circumstances, who are traveling in Europe under the wing of their ebullient manager, Tad Spencer, played by Adolphe Menjou. They arrive at a Swiss resort where they were to put on a performance but find that the hotel has burned down. Installing his troupe at a little lodging house, the manager discovers a marvelously gifted amateur ice skater in the person of beautiful little Greta, the innkeeper's daughter (Sonja Henie), who is being trained by her father (Jean Hersholt) to win the Olympic ice skating championship, which he once held, but which was taken from him on false charges of professionalism.

Amid plot complications during which Menjou nearly ruins the father's and daughter's hopes by placing her in a professional skating performance, Sonja finds occasion to give some stunning exhibitions of her genius as a dancer on the ice. Finally, through the help of a young American newspaperman (Don Ameche) who has fallen in love with her, Sonja is saved from the taint of professionalism, and wins the Olympic championship.

In order to make the spectacular ice scenes called for by the picture, a special ice skating rink 150 by 80 feet was built on a new air-conditioned sound stage. It was the first ice-skating rink ever built in any studio and was so constructed that it could be moved from one stage to another.

Joshua Humphreys, "father of the American navy," was America's first warship builder, launching his first boat in 1794.

Cassidy Hit Is Showing At Capitol

"HOPALONG CASSIDY," hero to millions of outdoor action fans, is a villain in the latest of his film adventures, "Borderland," which arrived at the Capitol theater today.

As a real dyed-in-the-wool villain, who hates babies, hobnobs with cattle rustlers, belongs to a gang of bandits and hangs out in the lowest joint in the border town of El Rio, "Hoppy" breaks the heart of his pal, Johnny Nelson, and completely bewilders "Windy," his loyal old side-kick.

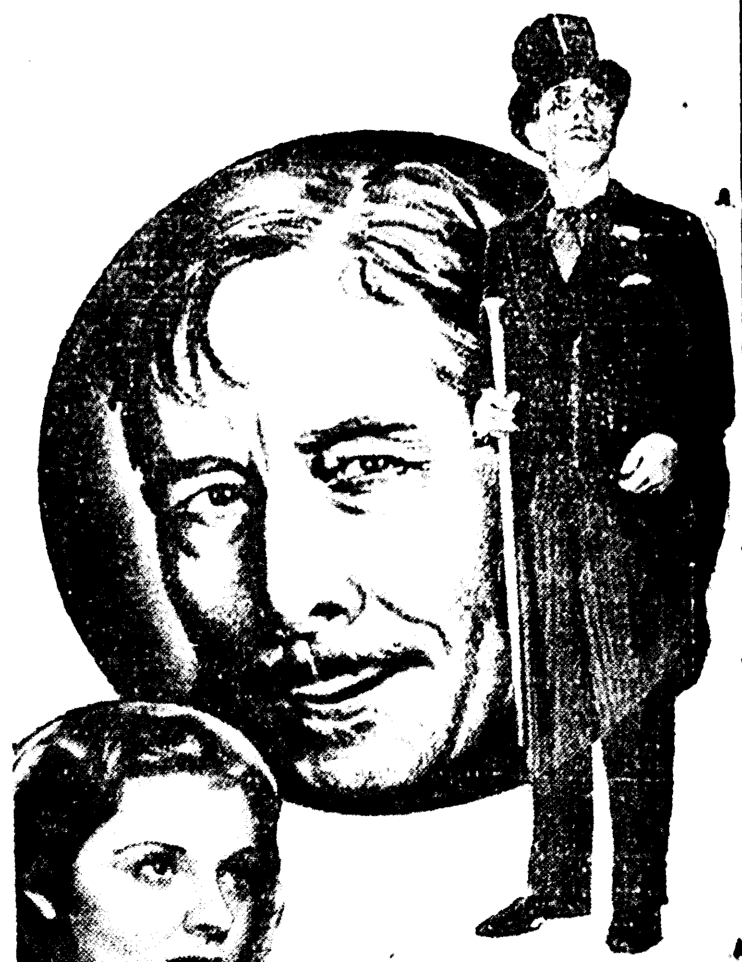

But "Hopalong" has a reason for his villainy and it makes "Borderland" one of the most thrilling and fast moving of the popular series of westerns from the pen of Clarence E. Mulford. There's a bandit to be apprehended who is entirely too slick to be taken by the usual methods of the Texas Rangers. It is up to "Hoppy" to become an outlaw himself in order to establish contact with "The Fox," and the best way he can accomplish this is to get himself arrested on a faked charge and to go "bad" in a big way.

William Boyd in Clarence E. Mulford's "Borderland," with Jimmy Ellison and George Hayes, playing at the Capitol today and Monday.

At the Capitol Tuesday and Wednesday, Eleanor Powell in "Born to Dance" with James Stewart, Virginia Bruce, Una Merkel and Sid Silvers.

George Arliss and Rene Ray in "Man of Affairs," playing at the Capitol the next Friday.

Humphrey Bogart, the killer of "Petrified Forest," and Erin O'Brien-Moore, in "Black Legion," Warner Bros. daring expose of the mad mob behind 50,000 bloody murders, which comes to the Paramount theater Tuesday.

SHIRTSLEEVE" KELTON SLAIN

PURPLE CROSS HEAD KILLED BY OWN GANG MEMBER...

TO THINK THAT THE MAN WE WERE LOOKING FOR ALL THE TIME WAS AT OUR VERY SIDE, PRETENDING TO BE HELPING US ROUND UP THE PURPLE CROSS GANG.

RIGHT, CHIEF! BUT HE'S DEAD NOW - AND WE HAVE ENOUGH EVIDENCE AGAINST "BALDY" STARK, BACK THERE IN THE CELL, TO SEND HIM TO THE ELECTRIC CHAIR.

OUR AMPLIFYING MICROPHONE MACHINE ALSO MADE A SOUND FILM OF KELTON'S BOAST TO "BALDY" STARK THAT HE COMMITTED THE GARAGE MURDERS.

THIS FILM IS SIMILAR TO MOVIE SOUND FILM EXCEPT THAT IT HAS NO PICTURES ON IT, OF COURSE.

YOU SEE, "SHIRTSLEEVE" WORE A MIRACULOUSLY REALISTIC MUSTACHE IN HIS EVERYDAY ROLE - BUT REMOVED IT WHEN HE DONNED HIS MASK TO MEET THE GANG.

TRACY! THE BOYS YOU SENT OVER TO STAND GUARD AT KELTON'S OFFICE JUST PHONED - THEY'VE MADE A GREAT DISCOVERY - AND THEY WANT YOU TO COME OVER RIGHT AWAY.

I TOLD THEM NOT TO SEARCH THAT OFFICE TILL I ARRIVED. I WONDER WHAT'S UP.

TEN MINUTES LATER

HEY, IN THERE - WHY ALL THE DARKNESS?

COME ON IN, TRACY.

WE JUST MOVED A DESK AND WE MUST HAVE CRUSHED A FLOOR LIGHT CORD AND BLOWN OUT A FUSE.

TRACY MARK KEY

WE WERE MOVING THE DESK SO WE COULD GET THAT CABINET OPEN. LOOK AT THE LABEL ON THAT DOOR!

GREAT SCOTT! PAT HOLD THIS FLASH-LIGHT - WE'RE GOING TO OPEN THAT CABINET.

PURPLE CROSS RECORDS

THE CONTENTS OF THIS BABY SHOULD TELL PLENTY. UH!

WHAT IN-?

DYNAMITE! DOZENS OF STICKS OF IT.

AND ELECTRICALLY WIRED! SO IT WOULD EXPLODE WHEN THIS DOOR WAS OPENED.

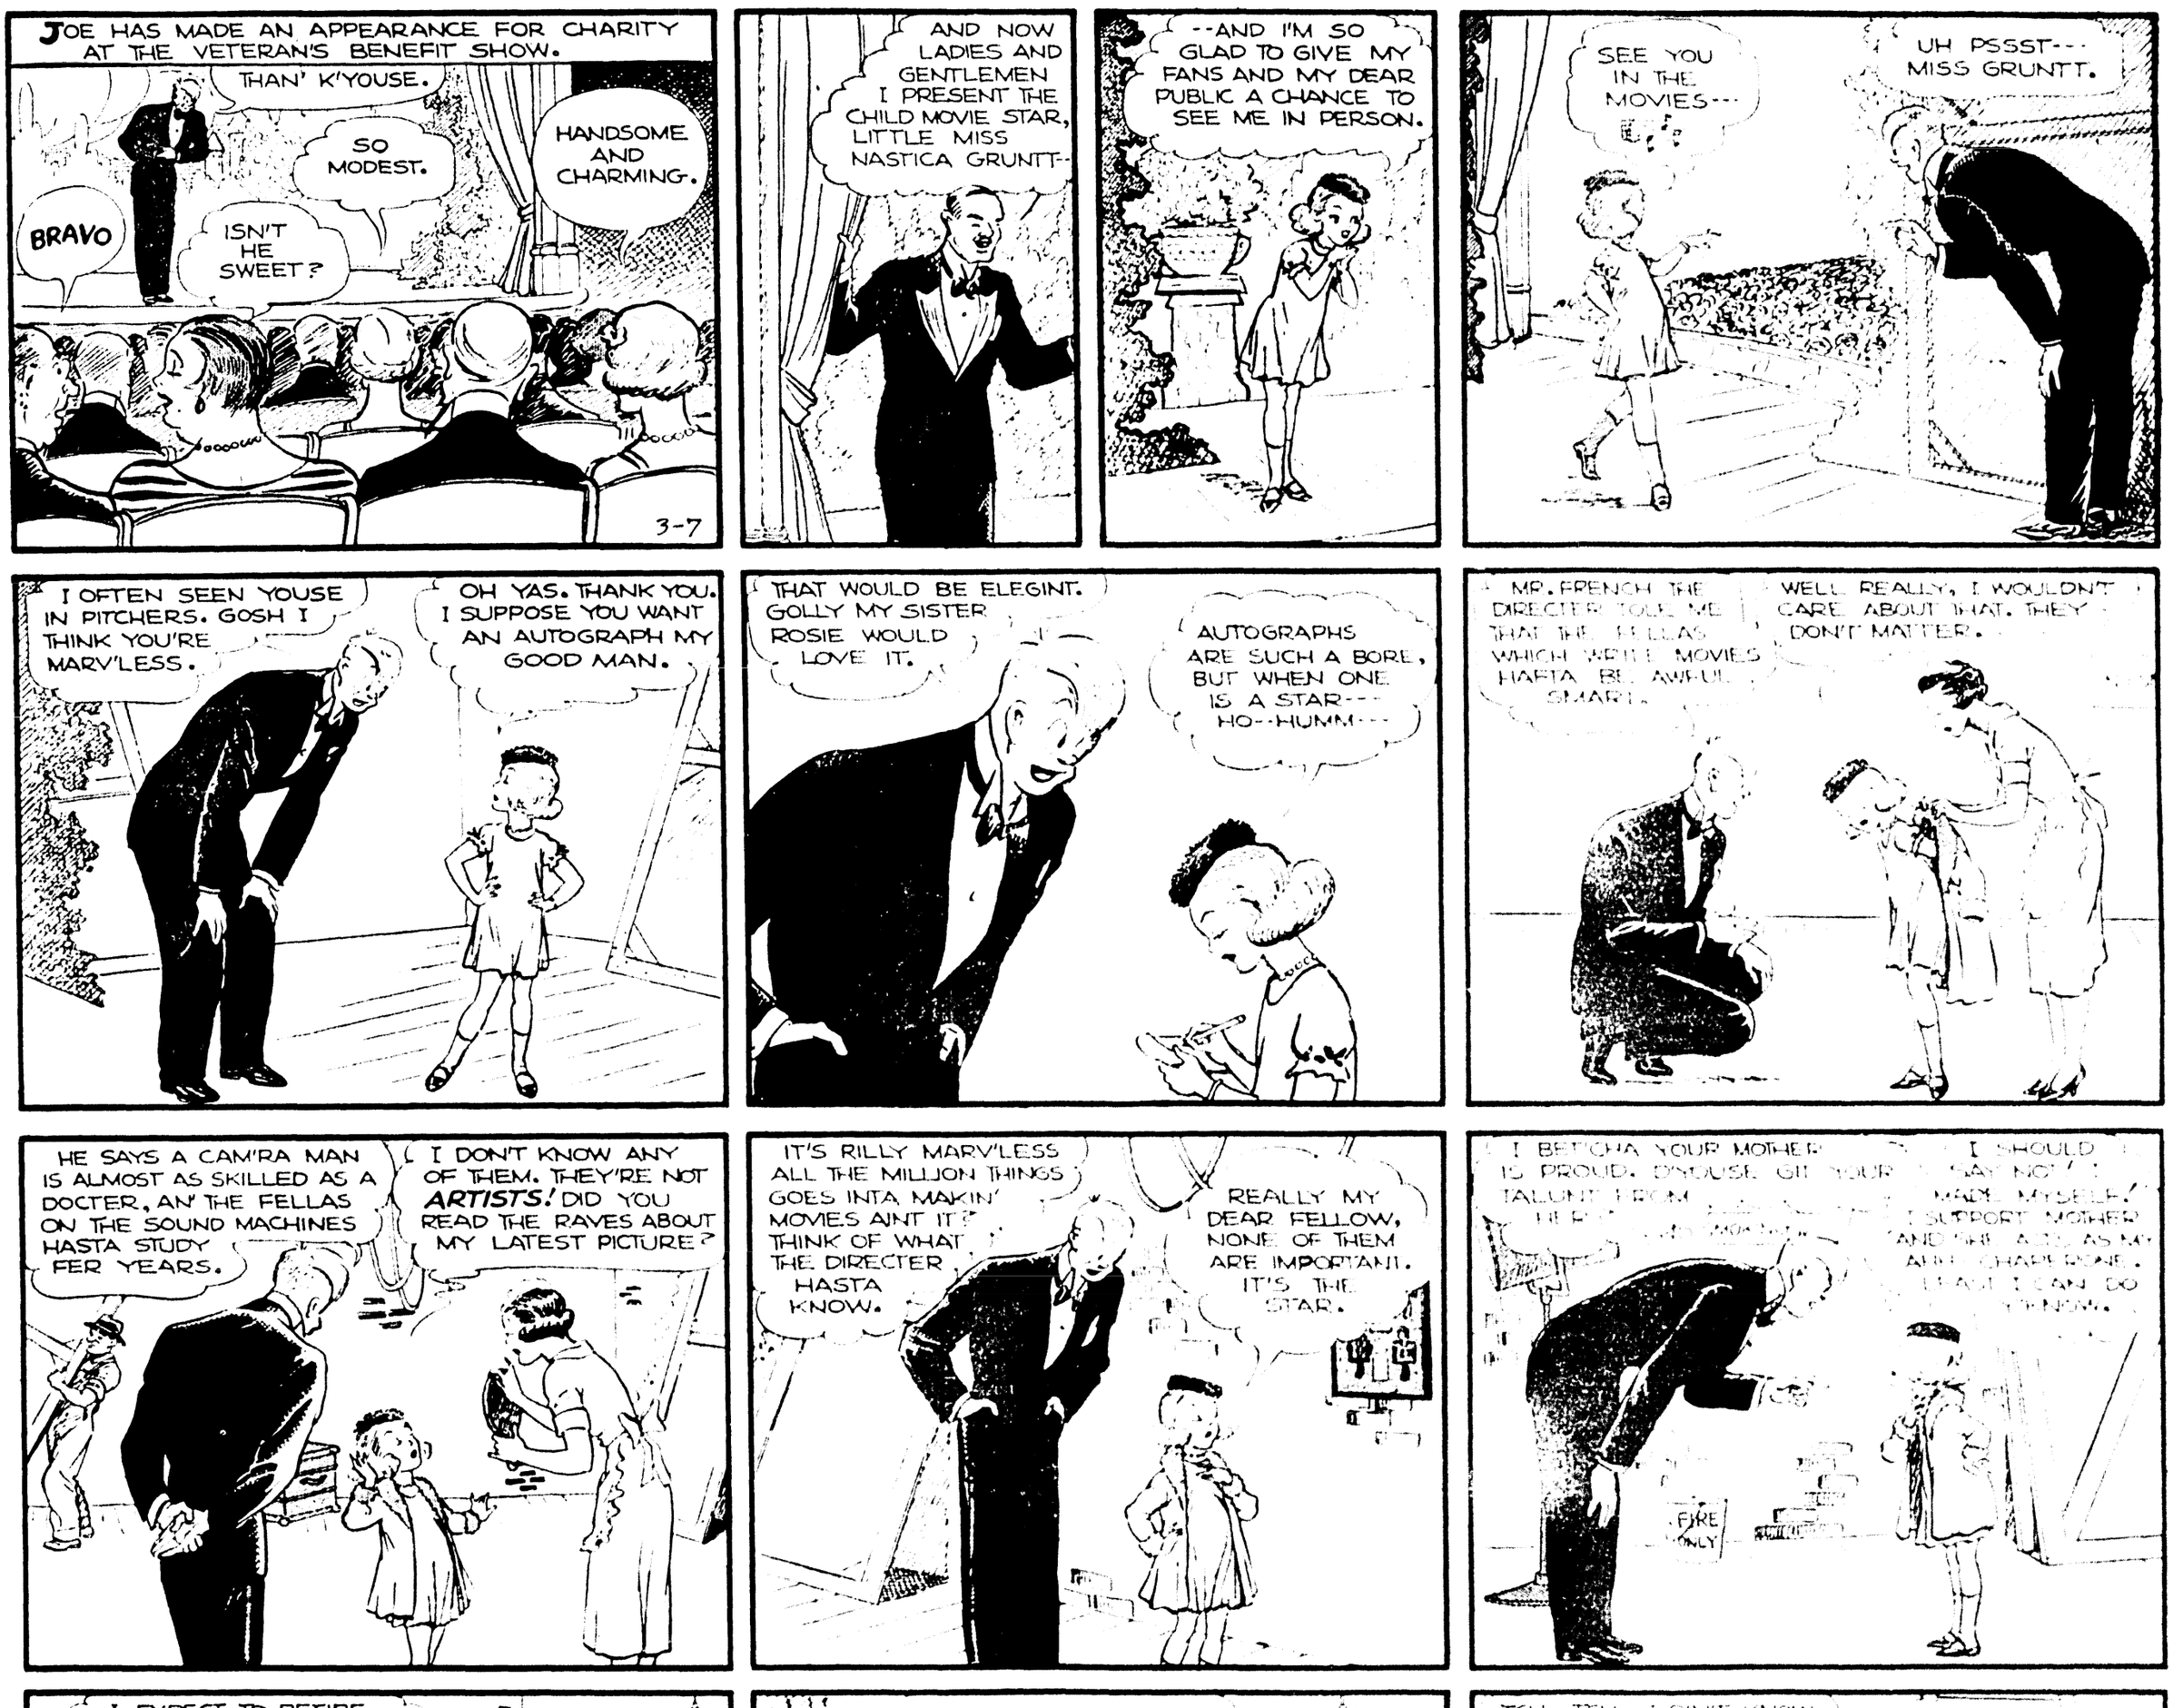

BOYS - SHORT CIRCUITING THAT FLOOR CORD IS THE BEST THING YOU EVER DID. MR. KELTON'S FINAL TRICK TO KILL ANYONE WHO SHOULD TRY TO INVESTIGATE THE PURPLE CROSS HAS MISSED FIRE BY A HAIR -
